

Genesis of Islamic Republic of Pakistan

Chapter # 1

Long Questions

Q1. Give an account of the Muslim struggle from 1857 to the establishment of the Muslim League in 1906.

Ans: Account of the Muslim struggle (1857-1906)

The following landmark events constitute the Muslim struggle for independence from 18857 to the establishment of the Muslim League in 1906.

- British Ascendancy
- The Aligarh Movement
- Extremist Hindu Movements
- The Partition of Bengal
- The Shimla Deputation
- Establishment of the Muslim League

British Ascendancy

In the year 1857, The British ascendancy over Indian ended the eight hundred-year Muslim rule. In 1858, India was given under the direct control of the British Crown. The failure of the 1857 War of Independence had disastrous consequences for the Muslims as the British placed all the responsibility for this event on them. Determined to stop such a recurrence in future, the British followed deliberately a repressive policy against the Muslims. Properties and estates of those even remotely associated with the freedom fighters were confiscated and conscious efforts were made to close all avenues of honest living for them.

The Aligarh Movement

The end of the Mughal Empire and the consequent plight of the Muslims impelled Sir Sayed Ahmad Khan to plant a sampling of Aligarh Movement in India. Sir Sayed had the fore-sightedness to realize the benefits of modern education and the wholesome effect that it would eventually have on the lot of the Sub-continent's Muslims. Muslims could not play their due part in society without utilizing to the fullest the opportunities offered by the new western culture and education. Sir Sayed formed many educational institutions under the flag of the Aligarh Movement.

The Extremist Hindu Movements

The extremism Hindus made life a misery for the Muslims of India. The Muslims were maltreated and deprived of the rights. Muslims were robbed of their properties and homes. There was no shelter for them. The slaughter of cow was said to be a heinous crime against the law. The slaughter of cow was said to be a heinous crime against the law. The Muslims were not free to perform their religious rites. The Anti-Muslim movement "Arya Smaj" flourished in the last two decades of the nineteenth century. The movement aimed at reconverting the Muslims to Hinduism. Bankim Chandra wrote a novel Anand Matth. This novel provoked Muslims religious sentiments. Anti-Muslims epic Bande Matrum was a part of this novel.

The partition of Bengal

Lord Curzon made Bengal an independent province in 1905. This step was taken mainly due to administrative reasons. Bengal was a vast province and could not be handled properly unless divided into two parts- East Bengal and West Bengal. This partition of Bengal changed the fate of the Bengali Muslims. They began to prosper as a nation. The Hindus could not digest the death of their monopoly. They could not see the Muslim nation taking feet. They behaved very aggressively and revolted against the partition of Bengal. This attitude of the Hindus led the Muslims of India to form All India Muslim League.

The Simla Deputation and the Demand for separate Homeland

A deputation of Muslim leaders called on Lord Minto, the viceroy, On October 1, 1906, at Simla, Sir Agha Khan, the head of the deputation, presented a memorandum in which he requested for the basic political, economic, cultural and other rights for the Muslims. He also introduced a system of separate electorate for the Muslims. The Viceroy's reaction was favourable

Establishment of the Muslim League

In December 1906, the yearly meeting of Muslim Educational Conference was held at the house of Nawab Samiullah Khan of Dhaka. All the towering politicians of Indian participated in that meeting. In this meeting, Nawab Saimullah Khan presented a resolution and all the member of meeting accepted it. As a result of this resolution, the Muslim League came into existence on December 30, 1906, in Dhaka. It was decided that the main office of the Muslim League would be set up in Aligarh. Sir Agha Khan was elected the first president of Muslim League. The objectives of the Muslim League were the following:

- To create an understanding between the government and the Indian Muslims and to promote the feelings of loyalty among them.
- To co-ordinate with the other nations and political parties for the general welfare of the people.
- To protect the rights of the Muslim nation and to interact with the Government and other agencies for this purpose.

Q2. Give a background of the Aligarh Movement and a summary of its objectives.

Ans: Background

In the year 1857, the British ascendancy over India ended the right hundred years of Muslim rule. In 1858, India was given under the direct control of the British Crown. The failure of the 1857 War, Independence had disastrous consequences for the Muslims as the British placed all the responsibility for this event. Determined to stop such a recurrence in future, the British followed desperately a repressive policy against the Muslims. Properties and estates of those even remotely associated with the freedom fighter were confiscated and conscious efforts were made to close.

The Aligarh Movement

The end of the Mughal Empire and the consequent plight of the Muslim impelled Sir Sayyid Ahmad Khan to plant a sapling Aligarh Movement in India. Sir Sayyid Ahmad had the fore-sightedness to realize the benefits of modern education and the wholesome effect and that it would eventually have on the lot of the Sub-continent's Muslims. Muslim could not play their due part in society without utilizing the full opportunities offered by the new western culture and education. Sir Sayyid formed many educational institutions under the flag of the Aligarh Movement.

The reactions of the Muslims of India towards Aligarh Movement

Sir Sayyid's conciliatory efforts, taken collectively, are known as Aligarh Movement. A large section of the Indian Muslims appreciated Sir Sayyid's efforts. They stood by his side. They contributed both monetarily and morally to prosper Aligarh Movement. They supported Sir Sayyid by providing him funds for the projects of the Aligarh Movement.

Objectives of the Aligarh Movement

The following were the objectives of the Aligarh Movement:

- Conciliation among the Indian Muslims and the British.
- Education of the Indian Muslims
- Loyal Mohammedans.
- The friendship between Muslims and other Indian nations

Conciliation among the Indian Muslims and the British

The British Government had snatched the crown from the Muslims. So, they had a natural enmity against the Muslims. Secondly, they considered Muslims to be the lone wagers of the Mutiny. The Hindus were cunning enough to hurry good terms with the newly formed British government. Muslims on the other hand detested the invaders who deprived them of their rule over India. Sir Sayyid felt that these strained relationships between the Indian Muslims and the British government would harm none but the Muslims. So, for the all multi-dimensional of the Indian Muslims, Sir Sayyid Ahmad Khan formed the Aligarh Movement. To bring about an atmosphere of compromise and reconciliation was the primary objective of the Aligarh movement. The following works of Sir Sayyid are the proponents of this very object

- Risala Asbada Baghawat-e-Hind: In this Sir Sayyid describes the reasons which led the Muslims to wage a rebellion against the British Government.
- Loyal Mohammedans of India: In this book, Sir Sayyid Ahmad Khan highlighted the services of the Muslims who served British interests in the days of Mutiny.
- Tabin-ul-Kalam: This was the Urdu tafseer of the Bible.

Education of the Indian Muslims

The Muslims of India were against the British government system and Western education. So, they preferred to educate their children in the Muslim Dini Madrassa and not according to the demands of the era. On the other hand, the Hindus got their children educated according to the Western patterns. As a result, the Muslims were denied Civil services in the British Government. Thus, pained Sir Sayyid Ahmad Khan. He wanted the Indian Muslims should get both religious as well as modern educations. To educate the Muslims according to the demands of the modern age was the objective of the Aligarh movement.

Loyal Mohammedans

Creating loyalty in the hearts of the Muslim towards the British Crown was the basic objective of the Aligarh Movement. The Muslims of India detested the British because they deprived them of the rule over India. Sir Sayyid wanted the Indian Muslims to accept the new situation and to be loyal to the British Government.

The friendship between Muslims and other Indian Nations

One of the fundamental objectives of the Aligarh movement was to create friendship between the Indian Muslims and other nations residing in India.

Conclusion

Sir Sayyid's Aligarh Movement was a complete institution in itself. Under the flag of this movement, Sir Sayyid contributed a lot toward the development of the Muslims of India. He established many educational institutions in the far and wide of India and helped the Indian Muslims to be reputed as an educated nation of the region.

Q3. Describe and evaluate Sir Sayyed's services for the Muslims of India.

Ans: Sir Syed Ahmed Khan

Sir Syed Ahmed Khan was born in 1817 in Delhi. After early education he joined East India Company in 1835 as a sub clerk in the Court of law. In 1846 he promoted to Chief Judge. During the war of independence (1857) he was in Bajnora where he saved British women and children putting himself into the risk. Owing to this service Sir Syed was asked to work as a Governor but he refused because he wanted to serve the Muslims. It would hardly be an exaggeration to call Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan as the finest and most representative Muslim in the annals of the Sub-continent.

Back ground:

After the war of independence, the Muslims were the target of the revengeful activities of the British Govt. And the Hindus got an opportunity to make the British believe that the Muslims were a threat to the British rule. As a result, national recognition of the Muslims was in severe danger. At that crucial time Sir Syed Ahmed Khan was the first leader to come forward and tried to rescue the national pride of the Muslims, He started Aligarh Movement.

Services of Sir Syed Ahmed Khan

Services of Sir Syed Ahmad Khan can be divided into three categories:

- Educational Services
- Social Services
- Political Services

Educational Services of Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan

Following are the educational services of Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan

1. Aligarh Movement

The end of the Mughal Empire and the consequent plight of the Muslim impelled Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan to plant a sapling Aligarh Movement in India. Sir Sayyed had the fore-sightedness to realize the benefits of modern education and the wholesome effect that it would eventually have on the lot of the Sub-continent's Muslims. Muslims could not play their due part in society without utilizing to the fullest the opportunities offered by the new Western culture education. Sir Sayyed formed many educational institutions under the flag of the Aligarh Movement.

Objectives of the Aligarh Movement

The following were the objectives of the Aligarh Movement:

- Conciliation among the Indian Muslims and the British.
- Education of the Indian Muslims
- Loyal Mohammedans.
- The friendship between Muslims and other Indian nations.

2. Murad Abad School

Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan established the educational institution, Murad Abad, in 1858.

3. M.A.O School Aligarh

The M.A.O. School, Aligarh was established in 1875. Later on, the institute was upgraded to be a college. In 1920, this institution became Muslim University, Aligarh. In this Institution, Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan hired the services of Sir Arnold, Orison.

4. Scientific Society

Sir Sayyed established an educational institution in Ghazi Pur in 1863. The name of this institution was Scientific Society. The headquarters of this society were shifted to Aligarh in 1876. The purposes of the establishment of this society were:

- To acquire books in other languages.
- To translate them in Urdu.
- To create a balance between modern and Western knowledge.

5. Study of the British Education System:

Sir Sayyid visited England in the year 1869. He made a good use of this opportunity by visiting the most prestigious of the British educational institutions. He made a deep study of the curriculum of these institutions, and on his return to India, established a committee named Khawastgaran-e-Traqi-e-Taleem-e-Musalmanaan-e-Hind. Sole purpose of this committee was to establish educational institutions in India, conforming to the British standards.

6. Establishment of the MAO Schools:

As the first step the committee Khawastgaran-e-Traqi-e-Taleem-e-Musalmanaan-e-Hind established a school at Aligarh in the year 1875 it was named, Muhammadan Anglo Oriental School.

7. Establishment of the MAO College:

The MAO School was upgraded to the level of college in the year 1877. Viceroy Lord Lyton laid the foundation stone of the College and donated 050m of Rupees ten thousand from his own purse.

8. Establishment of the Muhammadan Educational Conference:

To motivate the Muslims for acquiring modern knowledge Sir Sayyid established Muhammadan Educational Conference in the year 1886. Annual meetings of the Conference were held at different important places throughout India. The Muslim League was founded in 1906, in an annual meeting of the Conference held at Dacca.

Aligarh Institute Gazette

Scientific Society of Ghazi Pur published a gazette. This was called "Aligarh Institute Gazette". This gazette was published in both Persian and English languages so that the Muslims and the Britishers could come closer to each other.

Social Services of Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan

Following are the social services of Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan

1. Causes of Indian Mutiny

Causes of Indian Mutiny: In 1859 Sir Sayyid wrote a book titled "Asbab-e-Baghawat-e-Hind", especially meant for reading by the members of the British Parliament. In this book he tried to prove that the uprising of 1857 was, by no means, a war of independence, this was just an upheaval spurred by a few trouble mongers. He said that certain unwise policies of the British Government also paved way for the unrest that resulted in this unfortunate incident. The Muslims, generally, liked to label the 1857 events as "War of Independence", but Sir Sayyid always called it a mutiny.

2. Loyal Muhammadans of India

In the year 1860 Sir Sayyid launched a magazine under the title of "Loyal Mohammedans of India". In this magazine he started highlighting the services of those Muslim nobles who had put their lives in danger to save the lives of the British officials and citizens.

3. Some other Reconciliatory Efforts

In order to bring the British rulers and the Muslims closer to each other, Sir Sayyed wrote a number of books and tracts, most notable among these were:

Khutabat-e-Ahmadia:

In 1869 Sir Syad , Khan wrote a book Khutabat-e-Ahma do defend the Holy Prophet (PBUH) in reply to 'A More's book.

Tabbain-ul-Kalam:

He wrote a commentary on Bible called Tabbian-ul-Kalam

Risala Tehzib-ul-lkhlaq:

In 1870 Sir Syed Ahmed Khan published a pamphlet, Risala Tehzib-ul-lklhaq in which he described social problem of the Muslims and he tried to eliminate the prejudice among the Muslims towards the Non-Muslims.

Asar-us-Sanadeed:

For the social welfare of the Muslims, he wrote Asar-us-Sanadeed.

Commentary on Bible

In this commentary he tried to identify the commonalities and the shared points between Islam and the Christianity just to show that both have certain things in common, both are different religious systems but they have certain common things.

Tehqiq-E-Lafz-I-Nasara

In this publication he said that the use of this word nasara does not mean that Muslims are showing some contempt toward Christians or they view them in negative term but it is a positive word and they are expressing positive sentiment. The interpretation given by the Europeans, by the British is not what is reality. So, this was another effort to remove the misunderstandings that were developing between the Christians and the Muslims of that time.

Ahkam-e-Tuam-e-Ahle |Kitab

Another publication was Ahkam-e-Tuam-e-Ahle |Kitab that means what are the principles what are the injunctions for eating with the people who follow any book of God in this case BIBLE. and Sir Syed argued that Muslims and Christians can eat together because both are AHLUL KITAAB therefore the Muslims and the Christians can interact more smoothly and they could work together harmoniously

4. Translation Works:

Following books were translated:

Ain-akbari, Tuzok-e-Jahangri, & Tarikh-e-Sarkashi Bajnor

In addition to all this Sir Syed also wrote Tafseer-ul-Quran, Loyal Muhammadan of India & Asbab-e-Baghawat Hind.

Political Services of Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan

Following are the political services of Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan

1. As a Member of Imperial Legislative Council

Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan was the member of Imperial Legislative Council. As a member of Imperial Legislative Council, Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan did the following services for the Muslims of India.

- He took the problems of the Indian Muslims very effectively to the Indian Government.
- He demanded separate electorate for the Muslims of India.
- He demanded the number of Muslim seats in Viceroy's council should be fixed.
- He demanded that only Muslim voters should elect Muslim members.

2. Urdu Hindi Controversy

In the year 1867, the Hindus of Banaras launched a movement to replace Urdu as an official language with Hindi. Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan strongly opposed this idea and thus he safeguarded Urdu, the sign of Muslim Identity.

3. Two Nation Theory

Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan, the pioneer of Ideology of Pakistan, used the word 'Two Nation' for Hindus and Muslims after being convinced of the Hindus and Congress hatred, hostility and prejudice for the Muslims. Defining the differences between Hindus and Muslims, Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan said:

"I am convinced now that Hindus and Muslims could never become one nation as their religion and way of life was quite distinct from each other"

After the Hindi-Urdu controversy, Sir Sayyed felt that Hindus and Muslims couldn't progress as a single nation.

Conclusion

Other of Sir Sayyed's major works were:

- Journal Asar-us-Sanadeed
- Loyal Muhammadan of India
- Khutbaat-e-Ahmdia
- Bayyan-ul-Kalam

Sir Sayyed Ahmad Khan blended Western Eastern and Islamic education. His theory of education was based on the following statement.

Philosophy will be in our right hand, natural science in the left hand and the Islamic ideology will be on our head.

Q4. Give background and reasons for the establishment of the Muslim League.

Ans: Eestablishment of the Muslim League.

After the end of the Congress Raj, it dawned upon the Muslims that Congress is only considerate about the Hindu interests. It was crystal clear then that if they want to safeguard their rights as a nation, they should go to some other platform.... other than Congress.

Causes of the Establishment of the Muslim League

The following were the causes of establishment of Muslim League

- Establishment of the British System of Government:
- Urdu Hindi Controversy
- Hindu Extremism:
- Establishment of the Indian National Congress:
- Demand for Separate Electorate:
- Partition of Bengal and the Congress Attitude
- Change of Government in Britain:
- Simla Deputation

1. Establishment of the British System of Government:

The system introduced after the establishment of the British Government in the year 1858, was democratic in nature. Since the Hindus outnumbered the Muslims in Indian population they were on a surer ground under the new political system. The British had already crippled the Muslims economically. A system based on majority rule, pure and simple, were established the Muslims were surely going to lose. This state of affairs called for a Muslim political platform to voice Muslim demands effectively.

2. Urdu Hindi Controversy

During the British raj, Urdu was the national language of India. The Hindus wanted to replace Urdu with Hindi. They also wanted to replace the Arabic script of Urdu in Devnagri in which Hindi was written. These activities endangered the life of Urdu. The Muslims were very perturbed against this situation. They formed Urdu sycophancies. The Muslims knew that assault against Urdu is the assault against the Muslim culture. To heighten the intensity and pitch of their revolt, they formed All India Muslim League.

3. Hindu Extremism:

We have already learnt about Urdu-Hindi Controversy spurred by the Hindus in 1867, the Hindus demanded replacement of Urdu by Hindi as official language. During the same period, Hindu extremists started programmes like the "Arya Samaj" with a purpose to reconvert the Muslims into Hindu religion. Hindu writers spread hatred against the Muslims among their followers.

4. Establishment of the Indian National Congress

A retired British Civil Servant A.O. Hume established the Indian National Congress in the year 1885. The Hindus welcomed it enthusiastically and joined it in great numbers.

5. Demand for Separate Electorate

Sir Sayyid believed that the British system of elections, pure and simple, did not suit the Indian conditions, because this will reduce the Muslims to a position of permanent slavery and subservience to the majority community. He proposed the system of separate electorate as an alternative. This system obviously could not be made useful unless the Muslims had a political party of their own.

6. Partition of Bengal and the Congress Attitude

In the year 1905, the British government divided the province of Bengal into two parts. Since the newly created province of East Bengal had a Muslim majority, the Muslims were to benefit from this partition. Hindus launched a strong protest against this decision of the government throughout India. The province of Bengal was the main target of the saboteurs. The Muslims were greatly disappointed when they saw that the Congress, notwithstanding all its claims of neutrality, was supporting the Hindu extremists openly.

7. Change of Government in Britain

Liberal Party returned to power in the 1905 elections held in Britain. The party gave a programme of political reforms meant for India. The Muslim leaders discussed the situation and decided to make a common cause for taking up the demands of the Muslim community with the government.

8. The Simla Deputation

Thirty-five top ranking Muslim leaders taken from all parts of the Sub-Continent called on the then Viceroy Lord Minto at Simla on Oct 1, 1906. Important Muslim demands presented to the Viceroy included; reserved quota of seats for Muslims in all representative bodies and separate electorate; The Viceroy expressed sympathy with the Muslim demands and promised to take them up with the British Government. The Muslim leaders were greatly encouraged by the Viceroy's response.

Foundation of Muslim League

On December 30th, 1906, the Yearly Meeting of Muslim Educational Conference was held at the house of Nawab Samiullah Khan of Dhaka. All the towering politicians of India participated in that meeting. In this meeting, Nawab Samiullah Khan presented a resolution. This resolution was accepted by all the members of the meeting. As a result of this resolution, the Muslim League came into existence on 30th December 1906 in Dhaka.

It was decided that the main office of the Muslim League would be set up in Ali Garh. Sir Agha Khan was elected the first president of the Muslim League.

Objectives of All India Muslim Leagues

The objectives of the Muslim League at the time of its formation were the following:

1. To safeguard and protect the interests of the Indian Muslims; to convey their demands to the British government in a peaceful manner and through constitutional means.
2. To create feelings of respect and goodwill for the government amongst the Muslims and to remove any misunderstanding they might have, regarding governments Policies and actions
3. To create feelings of brotherhood between the Muslims and other Indian communities.

Change of Objectives

In March 1913 changes in the objectives of the All-India Muslim League were made on Quaid-e-Azam's initiative. Policy of unconditional subservience was forsaken in the favour of "self-government suitable for Indian conditions". This proved to be a timing point in the history of the Muslims of India.

Q5. Give an account of the proposals brought forward for the solution of the Indian problems at different times.

Answer

Q6. Give a background of the Khilafat Movement and a brief account of its major event.

Ans: Khilafat Movement

Among the landmarks of our long and arduous struggle for freedom, the Khilafat Movement (1918-1924) stands out as one of the most significant political events.

Background of the Khilafat Movement

The World War I broke out in 1914, UK, USA, France, Russia and Italy went into the alliance against Germany, Austria and Turkey in those days, Turkey was the centre of religious reverence for the Muslims because the ruler of Turkey was treated as Khalifa of the Muslim Ummah.

During World War I, the sanctity and safety of Turkey were in great danger. This situation was not only miserable for the Turk nation but the whole Muslim world especially the Muslims of the Sub-continent.

The Muslims of India had a hope that one day Turkey will come to free them from the clutches of the British Raj. But during World War I, this ray of hope was struggling with its own life. It looked evident that the Sultan of Turkey would be poisoned and Turkey would lose sovereign status.

The boundaries of Turkey were extended to the whole of North Africa, the Middle East, and Eastern Europe. Hijaz-e-Mokaddas was also in Turkish domain.

In case of defeat in the war, both sacred cities Makkah and Madinah could go to the possession of Christian allied forces. Keeping all the apprehensions in view, the Muslims of India, under the leadership of the Ali Brothers, Maulana Mohammad Ali and Maulana Shaukat Ali, launched the historic Khilafat Movement after the First World War to protect the Ottoman Empire from dismemberment. Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi (1869-1947) linked the issue of Swaraj (self-government) with the Khilafat issue to associate the Hindus with the movement. The ensuing Movement was the first countrywide popular movement.

Important Events of the Khilafat Movement

The important events of the Khilafat Movement were:

Establishment of Khilafat Committee

To launch an organized mass movement and launch an opinion forming a campaign, an All India Khilafat Committee was formed on November 23, 1919.

Hindu-Muslim Unity and Non-Cooperation

The Khilafat Movement was a platform on which Hindu and Muslims came closer to each other. The Hindus, in the auspices and on the initiative Mohandas Karamchand. Gandhi decided to take stand with the Muslims against British invasion over Turkey. The Hindus decided to launch a Non-cooperating Movement against the government.

Khilafat Delegation

In May 1920, a Khilafat delegation headed by Maulana Muhammad Ali Johar set off to London to explain Muslims point of view over the issue of Turkey. The British government refused to give an ear to the demands of the delegation.

The Treaty of Sevres

In May 1920, the Allied forces decided on Turkey's fate under the treaty made at the banks of Canal Sevres. The Empire was stripped of its occupations in Europe and Arabia.

Non-Cooperation Movement

The Khilafat committee appealed all India to observe a Non-Cooperation movement against the British invasion over Turkey. Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi was elected the leader of the Non-Cooperation Movement. This Movement was aimed at the total boycott of the government. Under the initiation of this Movement the Indian:

- Government servants resigned services.
- The students quit educational institutions
- The award and titleholders returned their titles and awards to the government.
- Foreign goods were banned.

Civil Disobedience

In November 1921, the Khilafat Committee appealed the Indians to break the law and launch civil disobedience. They were asked to refuse to pay the taxes and to disobey the government. About thirty thousand people were arrested on account of civil disobedience.

Mopla Uprising

The Arab traders, called Moplas, lived on the South Indian shores. In 1921, there was a local type of clash between the Hindus and the Muslims. The British Government used this clash as a means to create a rift between Hindus and Muslims. The government used force against the Moplas. This situation gave a setback to the Khilafat Movement.

Chora Chori Incident

Chora Chori was a small town in U.P. In 1922, an infuriated mob of Chora Chori attacked a police station and set it on fire. As a consequence, 21 policemen were burnt alive. This resulted in the government's fierce action against the Muslims. The government decided to treat Muslims with an iron hand. This situation hurt the Khilafat Movement.

Civil Disobedience Called Off

Mohan Chand Karamchand Gandhi said that the basic charter of the Civil disobedience was non-violence. Since the movement had turned to violence. It should be called off. So, he called off the Civil Disobedience Movement. This proved fatal for the life of the Khilafat Movement.

Abolition Khilafat

The final deathblow on the Indian Khilafat Movement came when Ata Turk came into power in Turkey and he abolished Khilafat, the cause for which the Muslims of India had been sacrificing their lives for so many years.

Conclusion

So far as India is concerned the Khilafat Movement has left an indelible mark on the history of the Sub-Continent. It was the first countrywide agitation of the Indian Muslims with a central organization to guide its course. It transformed the psyche of the people, trained them in political agitation and taught them how to press come to their demands. It brought the Hindus and Muslims on one platform for the first and the last time. Although the Movement failed in its objectives, it had a far-reaching impact on the Muslims of South Asia. After a long time, they took united action on a purely Islamic issue, which momentarily forget solidarity among them. It also produced a class of Muslim leaders experienced in organizing and mobilizing the public.

Q7. Examine the impact and outcomes of Tehrik-e-Khilafat in detail.

Ans: Impact and Outcomes of Tehrik-e-Khilafat

The Khilafat Movement had left an indelible mark on the history of the Sub-continent. It was the first countrywide agitation of the Indian Muslims with a central organization to guide its course. It transformed the psyche of the people, trained them in political agitation and taught them how to press their demands. The following were the impact and outcomes of the Khilafat Movement.

- Beginning of common man's politics in the sub-continent:
- Hindu Muslim Unity
- Strong Muslim Leadership
- Hindu-Muslim Antagonism
- Communal Riots
- A step towards the liberation of India
- A step toward Pakistan Movement
- Moral support to the Turks

Beginning of common man's politics in the sub-continent

It was the first popular movement which touched almost all parts of the sub-continent. It was through Khilafat platform that the leaders of public opinion came very close to the common man. It gave people the consciousness which was to serve as a motivating force behind the Muslim struggle for the achievement of Pakistan in the days to come.

Hindu Muslim Unity

It brought the Hindus and Muslims on one platform for the first and the last time. The Hindu Muslim Unity reached its climax during the Khilafat and the Non-cooperation Movements. The Muslims of Soothsayer, under the leadership of the Ali Brothers, Maulana Mohammad Ali and Maulana Shaukat Ali, launched the historic Khilafat Movement after the First World War to protect the Ottoman Empire from dismemberment. Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi (1869-1948) linked the issue of Swaraj (self-government) with the Khilafat issue to associate the Hindus with the Movement. The ensuing Movement was the first countrywide popular movement.

Strong Muslim Leadership

Although the Khilafat Movement failed in its objectives, it had a far-reaching impact on the Muslims of South Asia. After a long time, they took united action on a purely Islamic issue, which momentarily forgot solidarity among them. It also produced a class of Muslim leaders experienced in organizing and mobilizing the public.

Hindu Muslim Antagonism

The collapse of the Khilafat Movement was followed by a period of bitter Hindu Muslim antagonism. The Hindus organized two highly anti-Muslim movements, the Shudhi and the Sangathan. The former movement was meant to create solidarity among the Hindus in the event of communal conflict.

Communal Riots

In retaliation, the Muslims sponsored the Tabligh and Tanzim organizations to counter the impact of the Shudhi and the Sangathan. In the 1920s, the frequency of communal riots was unprecedented. Several Hindu Muslim Unity Conferences were held to remove the causes of conflict, but it seemed nothing could mitigate the intensity of communalism.

A Step Towards the Liberation of India

Khilafat Movement was an important step towards the liberation of India. The forceful expression of India's popular sentiments against Imperialism helped the British rulers to understand that it was impossible to keep India under their control forever, they started to make their mind.

A Step Towards Pakistan Movement

The Hindu Muslim antagonism after the collapse of Khilafat movement clarified that Hindu and Muslims cannot be united on a single platform. This consciousness was a step towards the achievement of Pakistan.

Moral Support to the Turks

The efforts of the Indian Muslims for the Turks proved moral support for the fighting Turks. The speeches and statements of the Khilafat leaders were translated in Turkey and were sent to the Turk soldiers to consolidate them and to strengthen their footings over their demands.

Conclusion

Although the Khilafat Movement was a failure on the annals of history, yet it is a great success as regards the recognition of Muslim identity is concerned. Also, this movement was a proponent of the fact that the Muslims of all over the world have been tied in the bond of brotherhood. It was also a proponent of Allama Iqbal's verse.

Q8. What important events paved way for the adoption of the Lahore Resolution?

Q9. Elaborate salient features of the Lahore Resolutions.

Ans: Background

The Lahore resolution is the most significant landmark in the history of our freedom struggle. In March 1940, the Muslims of India adopted a resolution embodying their national objectives and expressing their firm commitment to make all efforts for the achievement of these objectives.

Important events and factors that led to the adoption of the Resolution were:

- The Two Nation Theory
- Hindu Extremism
- Allama Iqbal's Ideology of a Nation
- Period of Congress Rule
- The popularity of the Muslim League

The Two National Theory:

They Muslims, by virtue of their faith, are a nation separate and distinct from all other nations of the World. Their spiritual and national aspirations could only be realized in a state which was Islamic in nature, where they could live as free citizens and could model their lives in accordance with Islamic injunctions.

Hindu Extremism:

The Muslims had lived with the Hindus as neighbours and compatriots for about one thousand years. On the basis of their experience, they could not expect good neighbourly treatment from the extremist Hindus, who had already made it clear that the Muslims had no place in India, they should either embrace Hinduism or quit India.

Iqbal's Ideology of a Nation:

Delivering his presidential address at the annual session of the Muslim League held at Allahabad in 1930, Poet-philosopher Allama Muhammad Iqbal said that

“... the north-western part of the Indian sub-continent was predominantly Muslim, that Muslims living in these areas form a distinct and separate national entity and that their rights in any future constitution should be determined in this light”

Period of Congress Rule:

Congress ministries were formed in seven out of the eleven Indian provinces, these governments worked till 1939. Had governance and the oppressive rule of the congress ministries created a general discontentment and despair among the Muslims. Demand for a separate Muslim homeland was its immediate outcome.

Popularity of the Muslim League:

The Quaid-e-Azam kept persistently in touch with the Muslims during the oppressive Congress rule, he was successful in impressing upon them that a horrible future lies ahead of them if the Congress were entrusted authority to rule the whole of India. As a result of the Quaid-e-Azam's efforts the Muslim League which had faded to attract the Muslim masses in 1936-37 elections, emerged as the sole representative of the Muslim nation.

Muslim League's Session in Lahore

Historic Muslim League session was held in 1940 in Lahore. Addressing a rally of more than a hundred thousand people after the Jum'a prayers on March 22, the Quaid-e-Azam said:

“ under the plea of unity of India and one nation, which does not exist, it is sought to pursue here the line of one central government. We know that the history of the last twelve hundred years has failed to achieve unity, and has witnessed India during the ages, always divided into Hindu India and Muslim India. Muslims are a nation according to any definition of nation and they must have their separate homeland. We wish to live in peace and harmony with our neighbours as a free and independent people”

Adoption of the Lahore Resolution

The twenty-seventh session of All-India Muslim League was held at Lahore under the presidency of Quaid-e-Azam Mohammad Ali Jinnah. Moulvi Abdul Kasim Fazlul Haq, Chief Minister of Bengal, presented the historic Lahore Resolution, also known as “Pakistan Resolution”. The resolution demanded that the Muslim majority areas as in North-Western and Eastern zones of India should be grouped to constitute independent states in which the constituent units should be autonomous and sovereign.

Salient features of Lahore Resolution

The Lahore resolution embodied minimum demands regarding the political status of the Muslims in South Asia. The Muslims resolved in will only accept a constitutional formula, which satisfies the following Muslim demands”

- Federal Scheme Disapproved
- Establishment of Independent States
- Safeguards for Minorities
- The extent of State Sovereignty

Federal Scheme Disapproved

The federal scheme formulated in the Government of India act 1935 is unsuitable for the Indian conditions. The Indian Muslims will never accept it.

Establishment of Independent States

It was clearly stated that a constitution acceptable for the Muslims of India should be based on the following principles:

“Geographically contiguous units be demarcated into regions..... in which the Muslims are numerically a majority, as in the North-Western and Eastern zones of India, should be grouped to constitute independent states in which the constituent units shall be autonomous and sovereign.

Safeguards of Minorities

In the newly established Muslim and non-Muslim states adequate constitutional safeguards should be provided to minorities, with their consultation, for the protection of their religious, cultural, economic, political and administrative rights and interests.

The extent of State Sovereignty

The resolution authorized the Muslim League Working Committee to draft a constitutional scheme in the light of the principles stipulated in the resolution. This scheme shall ensure that the states created under this scheme have full control over the defence, foreign affairs, communications, customs and all other necessary subjects.

Hindu Reaction after the Approval of the Pakistan Resolution

Hindu Journalists

Immediately after the passing of the resolution, the Hindu press openly rejected it. The Hindu journalists called it “the division of the mother cow”. They rejected Muslim’s demands and ridiculed the resolution. They called it impractical and termed it as the fancy of some sick mind.

Hindu Political leaders

Hindu political leaders especially Gandhiji and Pandit Jawarhar Lal Nehru criticized the resolution a lot. They turned it down in harsh words.

The Name of the Resolution

Muslim League named this resolution as Lahore Resolution. But the Hindu press and Hindu leaders ironically termed it as the Pakistan Resolution. Ironically enough, this name became more popular than the original one. The Muslim leaders adopted the new term. It was later on called Pakistan Resolution in all quarters.

The Reaction of the Muslims

Some sects of the Muslim were reluctant to accept promote the demand for partition. But on the whole, this resolution was very popular in the Muslim circle.

British Press

British press paid no heed to the Pakistan Resolution.

Conclusion

The Hindus were confident that Pakistan would not be created but the determination and struggle of the Muslims retorted their false confidence. Pakistan dawned on the horizon of the globe only seven years after the Pakistan Resolution.

Q10. Analyse the Lahore Resolution and determine its place and role in the history of our freedom movement.

Ans: The Lahore Resolution

The attitude of the Hindus made it clear that the Hindus and the Muslims were two separate nations. On March 23rd, at the annual session of Muslim League at Lahore, the famous resolution, commonly known as the Pakistan Resolution was passed. Maulvi Fazlul Haq presented it and Quaid-e-Azam said in his address:

“By all means, Muslims are one nation and they need a separate homeland where they could live their spiritual, cultural, economical, social and political lives independently”.

Basic points of Pakistan Resolution

The basic points of the Pakistan Resolution were:

- Independent Muslim State
- Partition – the only acceptable solution
- Rights of the Minorities in Pakistan

Independent Muslim State

It was stated in the resolution that the contiguous units in the different areas should be demarcated as such that the Muslims majority areas of the North East and North West be established as an independent Muslim state.

Partition- the only acceptable solution

It was made clear in the resolution that no other scheme other than the partition of the Sub-continent will be accepted.

Rights of the Muslim Minority

It was stated that after partition, the rights of the Muslim minority will be protected and suitable arrangements will be made for this purpose.

Analysis of the Lahore Resolution

Following are the most notable features of the Lahore Resolution:

1. Word Pakistan

Word Pakistan was not used in the text of the Lahore Resolution.

2. Ambiguity in Demand

The Resolution did not demand one Muslim state in clear terms. The ambiguity, which was caused due to the use of plural 'states' was removed later at Madras session of the Muslim League held in 1941. A resolution adopted at this session clearly stated, that the Muslim League stood for only one sovereign independent Muslim state.

3. Undefined Boundaries

The boundaries of the Muslim state or states were not defined in the Resolution words like units, regions and zones were used instead.

4. Name of Resolution

The Resolution was originally called 'Lahore Resolution' but later it came to be known as 'Pakistan Resolution'. This name was given by the hostile Hindu press and was readily picked up by the Quaid-e-Azam. In the following years the Lahore Resolution was referred to as the sole document formulating Indian Muslims unanimous national demands. The points which were left ambiguous in the Resolution were later clarified in a resolution adopted by the Muslim Representatives Convention held at Delhi in 1946.

IMPORTANCE OF THE LAHORE RESOLUTION

Adoption of the Lahore Resolution was, undoubtedly, a significant landmark in the history of the Muslim India. Following reasons signify its importance:

1. Determination Focused

Through this Resolution the Muslims of India set their national objectives and expressed their unflinching determination to make all out Pions for the achievement of these objectives.

2. Expression of Confidence on Muslim League Leadership

Representatives of the Muslims from all over India attended the Lahore session. Events in the following years proved that Muslims had reposed confidence in the Muslims League. Pakistan was taken up as the core issue by the Muslim League in the election manifesto it gave for the 1945-46 elections. The Muslims rallied round the NMI. League in great numbers and the same parry which had failed to attract people In the 1937 elections, now emerged as the sole representative of the Muslim nation all over India.

3. Emergence of Pakistan

The Lahore Resolution gave a direction to the political struggle of the Muslims and within a short span of seven years' time the Muslims were able to achieve their cherished goal; Pakistan.

Hindu Reaction after the Approval of the Pakistan Resolution

Hindu Journalists

Immediately after the passing of the resolution, the Hindu press openly rejected it. The Hindu journalists called it “the division of the mother cow”. They rejected Muslim’s demands and ridiculed the resolution. They called it impractical and termed it as the fancy of some sick mind.

Q13. What was the Cabinet Mission Plan? How did the Congress and the Muslim League react to it?

Ans: Background

In fulfilment of the promise made during 1946-46 elections, the British Government sent three senior members of the British Cabinet, in March 1946, as a last attempt to preserve unity of the Indian federation. The delegation flew from London and arrived in Delhi on March 24, 1946.

Members of Cabinet Mission Plan:

These members were:

- i. Lord Pethic Lawrence
- ii. Sir Stafford Cripps
- iii. A. V. Alexander

Purpose of the Cabinet Mission:

The Mission was entrusted with the difficult task of reconciliation between the Congress and the Muslim League. Members of the mission discussed matters with the high-ranking Congress and Muslim League leaders including the Quaid-e-Azam.

Representing the Congress Mania. Abdul-K.am Azad and Gandhiji took a plea for the preservation of the Indian Union and introduction of federal form of government. The Quaid-e-Azam tried to impress upon the members that Pakistan was the only possible solution of the Indian problem.

Failure of Dialogue with Indian Leadership

Difference of opinion between the two major polid.1 parties was substantial and sharp. The Mission tried to make an effort to bring about the parties to a sharp. The Mission tried to make an effort to bring about the parties to a conciliatory formula acceptable for both. Leaders of the two major parties were invited at 9.10 from May 5, to 12, 1946 to discuss matters. Seven sessions were held but no result could be achieved.

Main Provisions of the Cabinet Mission Plan

The main provisions for the cabinet mission plan were as follows:

- India would be a federation
- The affairs to be dealt with by the federal government.
- Three groups of provinces.
- A province can opt-out of the group
- A constituent assembly
- Establishment of the Interim government

India would be a Federation or a Union

India would be a Federation or a Union consisting of British provinces and the India Princely States.

The Affairs to be dealt with by the Federal Government

The Federal government would deal with defence, foreign affairs and communications. The units of the federation will look after all other subjects.

Three groups of provinces

There would be three groups of the provinces

Group A	Madras, Bombay, U.P., Bihar, Central Province and Orissa.
Group B	Punjab, Sindh, North-West Frontier Province and the British Balochistan (this Group was to constitute Muslim Majority areas.)
Group C	Bengal and Assam

The province can opt-out of the Group

These groups would draft their constitutions in consultation with different provinces included in each group. A province could opt out of the group by a majority decision of its legislature.

A Constituent Assembly

A constituent assembly consisting of 389 members – 292 from provinces, 4 from the territories governed by Chief Commissioners and 93 from the Indian Princely States – would draft the Constitution of India.

Establishment of the Interim government

Interim Government at the Centre consisting of representatives of all communities would be installed based on parity between the representatives of the Hindus and Muslims.

Reaction of political parties:

The Reaction of the Muslim League

The league announced its willingness to participate in the Constitution-making Body. It, however, reiterated that its ultimate objective was Pakistan and that it would employ every means in its power, and consider no sacrifice too great to achieve its goal. The League also conveyed to the Viceroy its willingness to participate in the proposed 'Interim government'.

The reaction of the Congress

The Congress notified its acceptance of the Cabinet Mission's plan with a few reservations. It stated that it would join the Constituent Assembly to frame the Constitution of a free, united and democratic India. But it refused participation in the Interim government for the reason that it could not give up its national character or accept an artificial parity with the Muslim League in the formation of a provisional government.

The Reaction of the Sikhs

The Sikhs found the proposals unacceptable on the ground that the inclusion of the Sikh community in the North-Western Muslim block (Group 'b') would leave the Sikhs at the mercy of the Muslims and imperil the Sikh religion and culture. The All India Scheduled Castes imperil the Sikh religion and culture. The All India Scheduled Castes Federation considered the proposals as absolutely illusory and unworthy of serious consideration because seats have not been reserved for the Scheduled castes in the Legislatures. And also, because only one seat was offered to them in the Interim government.

Q15. Give a background account of the 3rd June Plan? Also, give its salient features?

Ans: Background

With the conclusion of WW II, the British wanted to leave India as soon as possible. They wanted to transfer powers to locals in a peaceful manner but the differences between two major political parties, the Muslim League and Congress, made it difficult.

After failing in all their attempts to create a reconciliation with regard to a united India, the British announced a plan on 3rd June 1947 to partition India into two states.

Today we know this announcement as the 3rd June Plan, 1947.

Announcement of Clement Attlee

The British Prime Minister Clement Attlee announced in the Parliament on 20th February 1947 that India would be given Independence by June 1948. He said:

1. India shall be given independence by June 1948.
2. If the Constituent Assembly fails to frame constitution within the stipulated time limit, the British government shall decide if the powers are to be transferred to a central government or certain provincial governments.
3. Mountbatten was appointed viceroy; he was to replace Wavell.

Lord Mountbatten as New Viceroy

Lord Wavell was replaced by Lord Mountbatten and was given a task to make a peaceful transfer of power from the British to the Indian Hands. Mountbatten reached India in the last week of March 1946.

Meetings with Political Leaders

After his arrival Mountbatten met with Indian leaders and proposed a plan. He discussed matters with the Indian leaders and was convinced that it was not possible to keep India united for a longer period of time. The Muslim League and the Congress both gave their approval to that plan.

Approval of British Government

After getting approval from Indian leaders Mountbatten flew to England to get approval of British Government, where it is readily approved.

Salient Features of Plan

The Partition Plan was announced on 3rd June 1947. Mountbatten also announced that the British will transfer the power to the newly created states, Pakistan and India on 15th August 1947.

1. Formation of Constitution

The British Government shall not impose its own constitution on India. The Indian Constituent Assembly shall frame a Constitution under which the government of the Indian Union shall be run. This Constitution, however, shall not be mandatory for the uni. unwilling to adopt it These units shall be allowed to form constituent assemblies to frame constitutions of their own choice.

2. Formation of Constitution

The Provincial Assemblies shall be entitled to decide which of the two Constituent Assemblies their respective provinces shall join. The Plan stipulated different formulae for the provinces of the Punjab, Bengal the NWIT, Baluchistan and for district of Sylhet in East Bengal.

3. The Decision for Princely States

The Princely States were also offered an option to join either of the two states. keeping in view their geographical position and "other conditions", or to remain independent by making treaty arrangement. with either of the two successor states.

Reaction of Political Parties

Both the Muslim League and the Congress announced their acceptance for the plan by the mid of June.

Governors of New states

The Indian decided Mountbatten as their first Governor General.

The Quaid-e-Azam decided to keep the office of Governor General for himself.

This decision announced Mountbatten it resulted serious issues for Pakistan in early years.

Decision of Provinces

1. Punjab and Bengal: Provincial Assemblies of these provinces voted for the partition.
2. Sindh: Provincial Assembly decided to join Pakistan.
3. Baluchistan: A Shahi Jirga in Baluchistan decided to join Pakistan.
4. NWFP: People decided to join Pakistan in a referendum held in NWFP from 6th to 17th of July.
5. District Sylhet: People decided to join Pakistan in a referendum.

The Independence Act 1947

In order to give effect to the Plan of June 3, the British Parliament on July 18, 1947, passed an Act known as the Indian Independence Act, 1947.

The main features of this Act are as follow:

1. Indian subcontinent would be divided into two independent states of India and Pakistan on 15 August 1948. Both states would have dominion status.
2. Government of India Act 1935 would be the provisional constitution of both states until they make their own constitutions.
3. All treaties and agreements between the British and princely states would end on 15 August 1947. The rulers of the princely states would have the right to join either Pakistan or India or remain independent.

Boundary Commission

Mountbatten appointed a Boundary Commission headed by Cyril Radcliffe for demarcation of boundaries in the Punjab and Bengal.

The Commission submitted its report to Viceroy on 10th August and was announced on 17th August 1947 three days after partition.

Lord Mountbatten made several changes in the actual plan to please the Congress and deprived Pakistan of certain Muslim areas in Punjab and Bengal.

Transfer of Power

Lord Mountbatten flew to Karachi to transfer power to the newly created state of Pakistan on August 14, 1947.

Quaid-e-Azam became the first Governor General of Pakistan and Liaquat Ali Khan became the first Prime Minister.

Territory of Pakistan was divided into two parts, East and West Pakistan.

Ans. Simla Conference

Lord Wavell came to India in 1944. On his arrival he announced a plan for the solution of the Indian problems.

- According to that plan a Viceroy's Executive council would be reconstituted and all offices except the Commander-in-Chief would be filled by the Indian members.
- Six Hindus and five Muslims would be included in the Executive Council.
- To discuss this proposal with the Indian leaders; Wavell called an All parties Conference in June 1945.
- All important leaders except Gandhiji attended the Conference.
- Congress wanted to appoint one Muslim member in the council.
- The government also intended to nominate one member from the Unionist Party.
- Quaid-e-Azam held firm opinion that all the Muslim members must be nominated by the Muslim League as it was the only representative party of the Muslims in Sub-continent.

The conference broke due to disagreement of this point.

10. What were the salient features of the Indian independence act?

Ans. The Salient Features of the Indian Independence Act

Indian Independence Act was passed by the British Parliament and sanctioned by the Crown in July 1947. The salient features of this act were as follow:

- i. British rule over India came to an end on August 15, 1947.
- ii. Title of the 'Emperor of India' will no more form a part of the titles of the British Crown after that date.
- iii. The successor state will be run under the Government of India Act 1935, adapted and modified to meet their requirements, as interim constitution till their respective Constituent assemblies frame Constitutions.

Additional Questions and MCQs

1. When and Why Bengal was partitioned?

Ans. Partition of Bengal:

- In the year 1905 Lord Curzon partitioned Bengal into two parts i.e. East Bengal and West Bengal.
- This step was taken due to administrative reasons.
- Since this partition benefited the Muslims, the Hindus and the Indian National Congress opposed it forcefully.
- The Muslims started to feel that they should have a political platform of their own to voice their aspirations and take their demands up with the government.

2. When and on whose advice Punjab Muslim Student Federation adopted the demand for separate homeland?

Ans. Demand of Punjab Muslim Student Federation:

- The Punjab Muslims Students Federation adopted the demand of a separate Muslim homeland as its objective in 1937 and made it a part of its constitution.
- This was done on Allama Iqbal advice

3. When and where All India Muslim League was established?

Ans. Foundation of All India Muslim League:

- A session of All India Muhammadan Educational Conference was held under the chairmanship of Nawab Viqar ul Mulk in December 1906 at Dacca.
- Resolution for the establishment of All India Muslim League was moved in the meeting by Nawab Salim Ullah Khan
- It was seconded by Maulana Zafar Ali Khan, Hakeem Ajmal Khan and Maulana Muhammad Ali Jauhar.
- Sir Agha Khan was made the first president.

4. What was the reaction of All India Muslim League and Indian National Congress towards Cripps proposals?

Ans. Reaction:

- Major Indian parties, the Muslim league and the congress, rejected the Cripps proposals, obviously for different reasons.
- The congress despised the prospect of India's disintegration, which the formula apparently promised.
- The congress knew that the government was under great distress due to the war engagements and it was a golden opportunity to build pressure on her to quit India.
- The Muslim league rejected the plan, simply because it stood for a federal India and did not grant her demand for Pakistan in clear terms.

5. What was the reaction of All India Muslim League and Indian National Congress towards Cabinet Mission?

Ans. Reaction:

- Gandhiji interrupted the plans as "an appeal and an advice". He said the Constituent Assembly as a sovereign body shall have the power to amend the Plan.
- The Muslim League Council met on June 3, 1946 and after three days discussion decided to approve the Plan.
- The Council resented that the Plan did not clearly provide for the demand for Pakistan but it saw a ray of hope in the "grouping scheme" and confirmed that the party would join the constituent Assembly with the hope that it would be able to achieve its objective through constitutional means.

Initial Problems of Islamic Republic of Pakistan

Chapter # 2

Q1. Give an account of the injustice done by Radcliff on the issue of demarcation of boundaries? How did Pakistan suffer due to these injustices?

Answer

Background of the Radcliff Award

According to the 3rd June 1947 Plan, the provinces of Punjab and Bengal were to be divided into Muslim and non-Muslim majority areas. The Muslim majority areas would become a part of Pakistan. To execute this division, two boundary commissions were nominated. One commission was for Punjab and the other was for Bengal.

Chairman of the Boundary Commission

Sir Radcliff, a British lawyer was the head of the Boundary Commission. The detail of the other members of the commission is as follows:

Members Of the Punjab Boundary Commission:

Chairman: Sir Cyril Radcliffe

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|------------|
| i) Mr. Justice Din Mohammad | (Pakistan) |
| ii) Mr. Justice Mohammad Munir | (Pakistan) |
| iii) Mr. Justice Mehar Chand Mahajan | (India) |
| iv) Mr. Justice Tej Singh | (India) |

Members Of The Bengal Boundary Commission:

Chairman: Sir Cyril Radcliffe

- | | |
|--|------------|
| i) Mr. Justice S.A Rehman | (Pakistan) |
| ii) Mr. Justice Abu Saleh Mohammad Akram | (Pakistan) |
| iii) Mr. Justice C.C. Biswas | (India) |
| iv) Mr. Justice B.K Mukherjee | (India) |

Arrival of Radcliffe

Chairman of the Boundary Commission Sir Cyril Radcliffe arrived in India on 8th July, 1947 and instructed both the Commissions to demarcate the boundaries of their respective provinces on the basis of the contiguity of the Muslim and non-Muslim areas according to the 1941 census. The commissions started their work and the councils on behalf of the Muslim League, Congress, Sikhs and other parties presented their arguments. The chairman Radcliffe did not participate in public sittings but studied the records of the proceedings. Finally, as it was feared both the commissions failed to evolve agreed award due to a host of conflicting interests. As a result, Radcliffe gave his own awards in Punjab and Bengal.

The Responsibilities of the Award

The responsibilities of the Award were:

- To demarcate the boundaries of the Muslim majority and Hindu majority areas of Punjab and Bengal.
- To divide the areas in a just and righteous way.

Lord Mount Batten's Role

Lord Mount Batten played a partial role in the division of the provinces. He wanted to benefit the Hindus. So, he planned an unjust division of the provinces.

Sir Radcliff's Role

Sir Radcliff handed over the Muslim majority areas to India. This was the worst example of biasness against Muslims. The Muslim and Hindu members of the commission could not agree with each other and Sir Radcliff took this decision solely with the invisible assistance of Lord Mount Batten. The private secretary to Sir Radcliff, later on, admitted that the arbitrator killed justice.

Injustices in Punjab:

Cyril Radcliffe, the chairman of the Boundary Commission, as feared by Jinnah, could not maintain partiality and in order to please Mountbatten and Congress gave its prejudiced award.

In Punjab, the Radcliffe Award snatched a number of Muslim majority areas from Pakistan. These included Gurdaspur, Pathankot and Batala Tehsil (Gurdaspur district), Anjala Tehsil (Amritsar), Jullundur Tehsil (Jullundur district) and Zira and Ferozepur tehsils (Ferozepur district). Out of these, Pathankot tehsil was given to India in order to provide a link between Kashmir and India.

Injustices in Bengal:

Similarly, in Bengal province the most important question was related with the future of Calcutta. It was the capital of province. Although, the Muslims made a quarter of the population of Calcutta, large section of its population consisted of scheduled castes that were allied with the Muslim League. In any case, for more than two hundred years Muslims of Bengal had contributed to make Calcutta what it was in 1947 and centre of commerce and industry.

The city of Calcutta was the biggest educational, industrial and commercial centre.

The consequence of Radcliff Award

Sir Radcliff provided a land route to India to move into Jammu and Kashmir. The headworks constructed on the land of West Punjab was also handed over to India.

The development of Calcutta was based on the toil of Muslim peasantry of Bengal. East Bengal produced most of the raw material which had to be sent to Calcutta because all the factories and mills were in Calcutta.

The Congress leaders were determined to get Calcutta by foul and fair means. Eventually, Calcutta was awarded to India, ignoring the claims of the Muslims.

Reaction to the Radcliffe Award:

The biased Radcliffe award pleased the Hindus because it deprived Pakistan of many Muslim majority areas. On the other hand the Muslims of Punjab and Bengal were shocked to see the award which totally went in favour of India. Jinnah too was greatly disappointed but he accepted the plan with sportsman spirit. During the course of his broadcast speech, he said:

“The division of India now finally and irrevocably effected. No doubt we feel that the carving out of this great independent Muslim State has suffered injustices. We have been squeezed in as much as it was possible and the latest blow, we have received was the award of the Boundary Commission. It was an unjust, incomprehensible and perverse award, but we have agreed to abide by it, it may be our misfortune but we must bear up this one more blow with fortitude, courage and hope.”

Conclusion

Sir Radcliff not only snatched the rights of the Muslims by his unjust Radcliff Award but he also sows the seed of permanent enmity between India and Pakistan.

Q2. Give an account of the administrative problems faced by Pakistan immediately after partition.

Answer

The creation of Pakistan was a great victory of the democratic idea of life. The Indian Muslims happily and valiantly laid down their lives and properties to achieve their destination. The creation of Pakistan was the realization of their dreams of living an independent life free from Hindu or British dominance. Quaid-e-Azam on August 15, 1947, said:

“My thoughts are with those valiant fighters in our cause who readily sacrificed all they had, including their lives, to make Pakistan possible.”

Initial Difficulties of Pakistan

From the beginning, Pakistan faced a large number of problems. Some of the initial difficulties were:

- Choice of Capital and Establishment of Government
- Administrative Problems
- Unfair Boundary Distribution
- The massacre of Muslim refugees in India
- Rehabilitation of Refugees
- Division of Military and Financial assets
- Canal Water Dispute
- Kashmir Dispute
- Constitutional Problems
- The annexation of Princely states
- Electricity problem
- Language Problems
- Pakhtunistan Movement
- Death of Quaid-e-Azam

Choice of Capital and Establishment of Government

The first problem that Pakistan had to face was to choose a capital to form a government and to establish a secretariat. Karachi was chosen as the capital of Pakistan. Quaid-e-Azam took the office of the Governor-General, Liaquat Ali Khan was appointed as Prime Minister and a Cabinet of experienced persons was selected. Arrangements were to be made to bring the officials who had opted for Pakistan from Delhi to Karachi.

Administrative problems:

Pakistan had to face many administrative problems in its early days e.g.

1. Lack of officers:

Most of the government functionaries and senior officers serving in the army were Hindus who migrated to India after the partition was announced. Therefore, those officers were then replaced with raw hand and inexperienced functionaries.

2. Non-availability of the Muslim Army Officers:

The British officers were employed due to the non-availability of the Muslim army officers.

3. High Posts were given to Britishers:

The most of the high executive officers, senior bureaucracy like the Governors, Chief Secretaries and Secretaries including the army chiefs were Englishmen. That was the reason when India attacked Kashmir and Quaid-d-Azam ordered commander-in-chief to deploy Pakistan army in Kashmir he declined to obey the order and provided full opportunity to Indian forces to enter Kashmir.

4. Temporary settlements of Offices:

The offices were set up in military barracks and tents. The Indian government withheld Pakistan's share of stationery items and office equipment, even paper was not available for office use.

5. The absence of Records:

The extremists Hindus spoiled the office record when it was being transferred to Pakistan from India and after the partition, the Hindu functionaries spoiled the office record before leaving Pakistan.

6. The problem in Reshuffling:

India refused to rent out its planes for airlifting the officials who had opted for Pakistan. Therefore, the Government of Pakistan hired British planes for airlifting the record and the personnel.

Unfair Boundary Distribution

A boundary commission was set up under a British Chairman, Sir Cyril Radcliff. He misused his powers and handed over Muslim majority areas like Gurdaspur, Ferozepur, Jullander to India hence providing them with a gateway to Kashmir. Quaid-e-Azam called it: "An unjust, incomprehensible and even perverse award"

The Massacre of Muslim Refugees in India

On the birth of Pakistan, Hindus and Sikhs became more furious. In a planned move, Muslim properties were set on fire and they were compelled to leave Bharat for Pakistan with nothing but their lives. Millions of refugees were killed before they reached Pakistan. Many migrants were looted and had to be provided boarding immediately as they reached Pakistan.

Rehabilitation of Refugees

Muslims were cruelly being killed by Hindus in East Punjab even before partition and they were obligated to leave India. Their settlement was a grave problem but Quaid-e-Azam faced this challenge with great courage and determination.

Division of Military and Financial Assets

To embarrass Pakistan financially, India did a lot of dishonesty in the matters of Pakistan, which were concerned with its benefits. Pakistan was promised to get Rs 750 million but the Bharat Government refused to give. Pakistan received only 200 million. Pakistan also did not receive the due share of the military assets. This dishonest attitude put Pakistan into great difficulties.

Canal Water Dispute

Most of the rivers flowing in Pakistan have their origin in India. In 1948, India stopped water supply to Pakistani canals to damage Pakistani agriculture. However, on September 9, 1960, an agreement called "Indus basin Treaty" was signed between the two countries.

Kashmir Dispute

Kashmir Dispute is the most important and unsolved problem. Kashmir is the natural part of Pakistan because at the time of partition 85% of the Kashmir's total population was Muslim. The Hindu Dogra rule, who was secret with the Government of India, declared Kashmir as a part of India. Pakistan had continuously insisted that Kashmir must get their right of self-determination but due to non-cooperation of India, Kashmir issue remain unsolved.

Constitutional Problem

The constituent assembly failed to frame a constitution even in eight years. Lack of a permanent constitution created chances of unscrupulous interference in the democratic progress of Pakistan.

The annexation of Princely States

All Indian princely states were given the right to link up with either of dominions. However, the fate of following states remained undecided.

Junagadh

The Muslim Nawab governing Junagadh favoured in acceding to Pakistan. But Indian Government sent Army troops towards Junagadh and occupied the State by force in November 1947.

Hyderabad Deccan

Hyderabad Deccan was the largest and richest state ruled by Muslim ruler Nizam who decided to remain independent. But pressure tactics began to be applied by the Indian government and Mount Batten. India attacked Hyderabad on September 13, 1948, and forcibly annexed this state to India.

Electricity Problem

Due to transfer of Muslim majority areas to Bharat and of unfair demarcation, electricity system of West Punjab was disrupted, because all power stations were at Mundi, a predominantly Muslim majority area, gifted to Bharat but Quaid-e-Azam said:

“If we are to exist as a nation, we will have to face the problems with determination and force”

Language Problems

After the creation of Pakistan, its language became a great problem. East Pakistan wanted Bengali as an official language while West Pakistan wanted Urdu to be an official language. Quaid solved language problem on 24 March 1948 and declared Urdu as National language. Language problem again started in 1951, because Bengalis' wanted Bengali as an official language. On 21 February 1952, three Bengali students were killed in protest against language. This caused a great problem for Pakistan. In March 1948 while addressing at Dhaka, Quaid-e-Azam declared, “Urdu and Urdu alone would be the national language of Pakistan.”

Pakhtunistan Movement

The Pakhtun's demanded a separate homeland and they were supported by India and Afghanistan. A referendum was held in frontier provinces and the majority of people decided to live with Pakistan.

Death of the Quaid

The early death of Quaid proved to be a setback for the newly born state. It created a leadership vacuum due to which many administrative problems were raised.

Conclusion

Pakistan came into being as a free Muslim state in quite unfavourable circumstances. It had no resources; it had to build up its administrative machinery from a scratch. But supreme efforts were made by the Quaid-e-Azam and his colleagues to grapple with the situation. His golden principles “Unity”, “Faith” and “Discipline” gave way to Pakistan for a bright future of a strong and well-developed country. In his last message to the nation on August 14, 1948, he told the nation:

“The foundation of your state has been laid and it is now for you to build and build as quickly and as well as you can.”

Q4. Write a short note on the Kashmir issue?

Answer: Pakistan had to face a sea of troubles and toils right after its birth. There was a long of trials, however the most important of these was the dispute of Jammu and Kashmir.

Location of the State of Jammu and Kashmir

The State of Jammu and Kashmir is situated in the North of Pakistan. It was the largest princely state in the Sub-continent. This state is contours to Pakistan, China, Tibet and Afghanistan.

Population of the State

The total population of the State of Jammu and Kashmir was 4 million according the census of 1941.

Area of the State

The area of the state was 84471 sq.km

A Muslim State

The state of Jammu and Kashmir is predominantly a Muslim state with Muslims being the majority in the area.

Kashmir and Dogra Rajas

The British Government sold the whole area of the state to Dogra Raja, Gulab Singh for Rs. 75 lacs only in the year 1846. The Raja and his successors played havoc with the Muslims of the state. The Muslims were crushed socially, economically and culturally.

Freedom Movement in Jammu and Kashmir

The struggle for Independence from the Dogra atrocities started much before the Pakistan movement. The Raja restated the freedom fighters with an iron hand but spirit for freedom can never be crushed through atrocity. The Kashmir even today are struggling to win the destination of freedom. They aspire for annexation with Pakistan “Kashmir banay ga Pakistan” is the main slogan of Kashmiri people.

Kashmiri ties with Pakistan

The State of Jammu and Kashmir is very close to Pakistan both on religious as well as geographical grounds. Most of the revivers that irrigate the soil of Pakistan flow from Kashmir. The Kashmir is emotionally attached with Pakistan. Therefore, they pressed the Raja to join Pakistan.

Fake Annexation of Kashmir with India

Raja did everything to crush the freedom movement of the Kashmiri people. He forced slaughtered 2 lac Kashmiris but the movement got momentum with the passage of time. Being unable to handle the situation in Kashmir, the Raja requested the India to come to his rescue. Indian government offered help on the condition to get Raja's signature on the document of annexation. Raja utterly refused and the Indian government prepared a fake document of annexation in which the state of Jammu and Kashmir had annexed with India.

Azad Kashmir

The Kashmiri people did not lose heart even after such a grim situation. They kept on fighting with Indian army for their cause until they got liberated a large area of Kashmir. This area is under the control of Pakistan and is called Azad Kashmir.

The Interference of the Security Council

Soon India got frightened of the Kashmiri's freedom frenzy. When the situation became tense on the line of control, the Indian government sought help of the Security Council of the United Nations. The Security Council intervened and passed two resolutions.

Two Resolutions of the Security Council

The Security Council passed the following resolution.

- i. Both the parties (Pakistan and India) were advised to accept cease-fire.
- ii. The dispute of Kashmir must be resolved according to the aspirations of the people. For this purpose, plebiscite was not to be held.

The Kashmiri freedom fighters co-operated with the Security Council to bring about peace.

Two Wars between Pakistan and India over the Kashmir Issue

The armed struggle stopped in Kashmir on Security Council's promise of holding a plebiscite. But unfortunately, Security Council could do nothing in face of the interests of the major powers. The plebiscite could not be held, and the Kashmiris are deprived of their basic rights. Pakistan was denied justice. This tyranny led to two wars between India and Pakistan. The wars resulted in nothing but blind bloodshed. Security Council passed more resolutions, but nothing was done practically.

Conclusion

The dispute of Jammu and Kashmir has not been resolved since many decades. India has sent large number of army personnel in the valley of Kashmir who are writing chapters of tyranny on the annals of the history. The problem of Kashmir is still pending on the agenda of the United Nations. Every now and then, many resolutions are passed but these resolutions prove nothing but lip service.

Q3. Write a note on the Indian government's attitude regarding the distribution of military equipment and other assets after partition?

Answer

Background

The creation of Pakistan was a great victory of the democratic idea of life. The Indian Muslims happily and valiantly laid down their lives and properties to achieve their destination. The creation of Pakistan was the realization of their dreams of living an independent life free from Hindu or British dominance. Quaid-e-Azam on August 15, 1947, said:

“My thoughts are with those valiant fighters in our cause who readily sacrificed all they had, including their lives, to make Pakistan possible.”

Asset issue

Pakistan came into existence against the wishes of Hindus. From day first they wanted to make Pakistan economically weak so they left no stone unturned to create hindrances in the way of development. The opponents of Pakistan always predicted that Pakistan shall not be administratively and financially viable, and if at all would come into being it would soon come down as house of cards. So as first attempt he tried to hold Pakistan's due share in finance.

The Total Currency in United India

At the time of independence, the total currency reserves of United India were estimated as Rs. 4 billion.

Pakistan's share

Pakistan's share in these reserves was Rs 1 billion, billion, but the government of India agreed to pay only Rs 75 crore (0.75 billion). The balance of Rs 20 crores was withheld on one pretext or the other.

Gandhiji's Interference

Later Gandhiji interfered and threatened the government marn bert (fast until death) due that pressure Pakistan received Rs. 50 crores more but the balance amount of Rs 5 crore was never paid.

Inherited Debt

The government of India made the 20 percent debt of the United India Pakistan's liability.

Mutilated Records and Equipment

Pakistan inherited mutilated and spoiled official record from India. The Hindus had mutilated even the hospital equipment before leaving for India.

Military Assets

Division of the military assets began when the process of partitions started. It was announced on July 1, 1947 that Indian army would also be divided in ratio 65 to 35 in India's favour it was with reference of the communal balance present in the British Indian Army.

Demand of Transparent Formula

Liaquat Ali Khan demanded the transparent formula for the division of the armed forces and their assets should be advised. Defence Minister Sardar Baldev Singh and the Commander in Chief ignored his demand.

Auchinleck Committee

However, In July 1947 it was decided that the armed forces would be divided into two parts. A committee under the Chairmanship of Field Marshal Auchinleck was formed to implement the scheme. The Indian government did everything to flout the Auchinleck Committee's efforts for a just division of assets.

Report of Auchinleck Committee

Disappointed at the Indian government's uncompromising attitude the Field Marshall decided to wind up his task four months ahead of time. Sending a report, the British government on September 28, 1947.

Auchinleck wrote in his report:

“I have no hesitation, whatever, in affirming that the present Indian Cabinet are implacably determined to do all in their power to prevent the establishment of the Dominion of Pakistan on a firm basis.”

Attitude of Indian Government

The departure of the Committee gave India a free hand to fulfil its designs. The Indian government gave Pakistan only a small part of her share in the military assets, even that was not in working condition and was badly mutilated. The aircraft and ships sent to Pakistan were not in working condition. At the time of partition, there were sixteen ordinance factories in the Sub-continent all went to Indian share. Thus, Pakistan started its new life with a small military force having meagre resources.

Conclusion

There were 16 ordnance factories and all were located in India. Pakistan was given 60 million rupees towards its share in the ordnance factories. Pakistan did not receive the due share of the military assets till now. This dishonest attitude put Pakistan into great difficulties.

Q5. What important steps were taken immediately after partition regarding constitution-making and formation of the government?

Answer

Background

Pakistan came into existence against the wishes of Hindus. From day first they wanted to make Pakistan economically weak so the left no stone unturned to create hindrances in the way of development. The opponents of Pakistan always predicted that Pakistan shall not be administratively and financially viable, and if at all would come into being it would soon come down as house of cards.

Prediction of Opponents

The creation of Pakistan was a great victory of the democratic idea of life. The Indian Muslims happily and valiantly laid down their lives and properties to achieve their destination. The creation of Pakistan was the realization of their dreams of living an independent life free from Hindu or British dominance. Quaid-e-Azam on August 15, 1947, said: “My thoughts are with those valiant fighters in our cause who readily sacrificed all they had, including their lives, to make Pakistan possible.”

Constitution Making

On 3rd June 1947, Lord Mount Batten, the last Viceroy of India, called the conference of all the leaders of the Sub-continent and communicated to them his Government's Plan for the transfer of power. At that time, a notification was issued in the Gazette of India, published on July 26, 1947, in which the first Constituent Assembly of Pakistan was given shape with 69 Members (later on the membership was increased to 79), including one Female Member. Constituent Assembly of Pakistan set up in 1947. To frame a constitution for Pakistan. The Quaid-e-Azam Mohammed Ali Jinnah was elected president of the constituent assembly of Pakistan on August 11, 1947.

The First Session of the Constituent Assembly

The first session of the first Constituent Assembly of Pakistan was held on August 10, 1947, at Sindh Assembly Building. Karachi, On August 11, 1947, Quaid-e-Azam was elected unanimously as the President of the Constituent Assembly of Pakistan and the Assembly formally approved the National Flag.

Committee of Fundamental Rights

On August 12, 1947, a resolution was approved regarding officially addressing Mr. Muhammad Ali Jinnah as “Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah”. On the same day, a special committee called the “Committee on Fundamental Rights of Citizens and Minorities of Pakistan” was appointed to look into and advise the Assembly on matters relating to fundamental rights of the citizens, particularly the minorities, to legislate on these issues appropriately.

The Quaid-e-Azam's Address to Assembly

Addressing to the assembly the Quaid-e-Azam gave a policy statement regarding the principles of policy to be followed by the state of Pakistan in the days to come.

Policy Statements by Quaid-e-Azam:

Addressing the Assembly, Quaid-e-Azam gave a policy statement regarding the principles followed by the state of Pakistan in the future such as:

i) Islamic Principles:

The future constitution of Pakistan would be based on Islamic principles.

ii) Democratic Nature:

Pakistan will not be a theocracy state. It will be democratic in nature.

iii) Equal Rights:

The Muslim and non-Muslim citizens shall enjoy the equal civil and political rights

iv) No discrimination:

No discrimination shall be made based on religion.

v) Completion of Task in minimum possible time.

He also directed the Assembly to complete its task of constitution-making within minimum possible time.

Formation of Government

Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan headed the first government of Pakistan and it chose the seaport of Karachi as its capital. Jinnah considered the founder of Pakistan and hailed as the Quaid-e-Azam (Great Leader), became head of state as Governor-General.

Problems Faced by the Government

The government faced many challenges in setting up new economic, judicial and political structures. It endeavoured to organize the bureaucracy and the armed forces, resettle the Mohajirs (Muslim refugees from India). And establish the distribution and balance of power in the provincial and central governments. Undermining these efforts were provincial politicians who often defied the authority of the central government and frequent communal riots.

The First Government Cabinet

Under the Quaid-e-Azam's guidance, Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan formed a five-member cabinet on August 15, 1947. The members of this cabinet were of outstanding ability. Being the Governor-General of Pakistan, the Quaid-e-Azam had an impartial and neutral position and did not interfere in the matters of the cabinet. However, the cabinet sought the Governor General's advice in various matters. The Quaid-e-Azam had the power to veto cabinet decisions.

Guidance for Public Servants

The responsibilities of the public servants, civil and military were greatly increased in the post-independence period. Quaid-e-Azam encouraged and advised them to work tirelessly for the cause of nation-building. While addressing the public servant, he said,

“You do not belong to the ruling class, you belong to the servants. Make the people feel that you are their servants and friends, maintain the highest standard for honour, integrity, justice and fair play.”

Nation's Confidence Building

The division of subcontinent India caused great unrest among the people of Pakistan. They were greatly demoralized and disappointed due to the sufferings that had come in the way of migration. Moreover, the negative propaganda by Pakistan's enemies created many problems. They were trying to assure that Pakistan was not going to last long. Therefore, Quaid-e-Azam approached the people in the remotest parts of the country to dispel the negative effects of this propaganda. He gave the people courage and hope and assured the people that Pakistan was born to live, it will last forever, and the conspiracies of the enemies of Pakistan will soon die out.

Other Important Steps

1. The Capital of Pakistan:

The city of Karachi was designated as the capital of the newly born state of Pakistan, which lacked even the most essential facilities required for the running of a government.

2. Rehabilitation of Refugees

About 6.5 million people migrated from India to Pakistan during the process of partition. The Quaid-e-Azam himself looked after the process of rehabilitation. He established a “Refugee Fund” and made an appeal to the people to contribute generously to this fund. They were provided homes and jobs in a few years’ time and this was possible due to the personal efforts of the Quaid-e-Azam.

3. Financial Matters

Quaid-e-Azam took personal interest in the establishment of State Bank of Pakistan and he himself inaugurated the Bank on July 1, 1948.

4. Federal Court

The Quaid-e-Azam established the “Federal Court”. It was the first step towards the establishment of basic structure of the administration of justice.

5. Pakistan’s National Language

The Quaid-e-Azam declared that the national language of Pakistan would be Urdu.

In March 1948 while addressing at Dhaka, Quaid-e-Azam declared,

“Urdu and Urdu alone would be the national language of Pakistan.”

Conclusion:

The Hindus accepted the Partition as impractical and the existence of Pakistan as transitory. Therefore, they created such great troubles for Pakistan that the new state would collapse. However, the supervision of Quaid-e-Azam and other Muslim Leaders lead the people of Pakistan to overcome these problems very soon and stabilized its economy.

- A) 1250 km B) 2250 km C) 3250 km D) 2850 km

Long Questions/Answers

Q1. In how many temperatures zones Pakistan is divided? Explain each

Answer

Pakistan is divided into four major temperature zones based on temperature zones. These zones are:

- North Western Mountain regions of Pakistan
- Upper Indus plain
- Lower Indus plain
- The Balochistan Plateau

The climate of Pakistan varies widely with topography but is generally continental in type. In the mountain regions of the north and west, the temperature falls below freezing during the winter. In the Indus plain area temperature range between 32 and 49 °C in summer the winter average is about 13 °C. Throughout most of Pakistan rainfall is scarce. The Punjab region receives the most precipitation- more than 508 mm (20 in) per year. The arid regions of the south-east and south-west receive less than 127 mm (5 in) annually. The most rain falls between July and September.

North Western Mountain Regions

In these regions, winter sustains for four months. In these areas, at times mercury falls below at 0 °C.

Upper Indus Plain

This division includes the province of Punjab and major part of NWFP.

Summer in Upper Indus Plain

It is extremely hot in June and July, dust storms blow in this region, tree leaves become dry and flowers away. In certain areas, June and July are oppressively hot. Although official estimates rarely place the temperature above 46 °C, newspaper sources claim that it reaches 51 °C and regularly carry reports about people who have succumbed to the heat. Heat records were broken in Multan in June 1993 when the mercury was reported to have risen to 54 °C.

Winter in Upper Indus Plain

Most areas in Upper Indus Plain experience fairly cool winters, often accompanied by rain. Women and men for warmth wear woollen shawls because few homes are heated. By mid-February the temperature begins to rise; springtime weather continues until mid-April when the summer heat sets in. In August the oppressive heat is punctuated by the rainy season, referred to as 'barsat', which brings relief in its wake. The hardest part of the summer is then over, but cooler weather does not come until late in October.

Lower Indus Plain and Coastal Area

Coastal areas of Pakistan form the lower Indus plain. Pakistan's largest city, Karachi is in this region. Due to the cool breeze blowing from the sea, in an area of about 80 km of the coast is moderate throughout the year.

Summer in the lower Indus

The temperature is also more uniform in these areas ranging from an average daily low of 18 °C to 28 °C from January to July. This year the lowest temperature was recorded at 7 °C.

During summer evenings the temperature varies from 18 °C of 34 °C. Although the summer temperature does not get as high as those in Punjab, the high humidity causes the residents a great deal of discomfort.

The Balochistan Plateau

Balochistan Plateau lies in the East Of Suleiman range. The average altitude is about 2,000 ft. The physical features of the plateau are very varied but mountains, plateaus and basins predominate the scene.

The winters In Balochistan Plateau

The winters are extremely cold in Balochistan plateau. Mercury drops below at 0 °C at certain points due to cold northern winds.

Summers in Balochistan Plateau

The summers are immensely hot in this area because the dry and bare mountains absorb heat and retain high temperature for long. The hottest point is Sibbi and Jacobabad

Q2. Write an essay on imbalanced economic growth and regional imbalance.

Answer

Economic disparities are found amongst the different regions of Pakistan. Some of these disparities are due to natural resources while others can be ascribing to bad planning and faulty management of affairs.

Population and Area of Pakistan Provinces

The population and area of Pakistan's four provinces have been recorded in the lines to follow:

Province	Punjab	Sindh	NWFP	Balochistan
Population	7.36 crore	3.41 crore	61 lac	1.77 crore
Area the province covers	2015,344 sq km	140,914 sq km	74,521 sq km	342,190 sq km

The above chart shows how unevenly the population of Pakistan has been divided. Out of the 23 most populous cities of Pakistan, only one Quetta is situated in Balochistan, only one Karachi in Sindh and the remaining populous cities are in Punjab.

The income of the Provinces

According to the latest available statistics, Sindh has the highest per capita income rate in the country. It is three times higher than that of NWFP, one and a half time higher than Punjab, and double than that of Balochistan. The income of Punjab is double than that of NWFP.

Industrial Development in Various Provinces

There is also disequilibrium concerning industrial development. Karachi and Hyderabad are the industrial centres in Sindh. Lahore, Multan, Rawalpindi, Gujranwala and Faisalabad are the industrial centres. But still, NWFP and Balochistan are underdeveloped as regards industry is concerned.

The government has declared Balochistan and NWFP as tax-free zones to develop industries in these areas.

Provision of the Basic Requirements of Life

Provision of the basic requirements of life has a direct bearing on economic development. Referred to as infrastructure, these basic requirements include railways, roadways, telephone, telegraph, television, electronic networks, newspapers and postal and courier services etc. These facilities are mostly provided in Punjab Sindh. The other provinces are mainly deprived of these facilities.

Feudalism and Bureaucracy

Feudalism and bureaucracy are a hindrance towards regional peace these are the causes of regional imbalance.

Conclusion

This state of affairs may prove explosive for national life. To bring about substantial change, comprehensive social and political transformation is required; broadening of the economic base of the society with strengthen the deprived classes and weaken the oppressors. Economic development can only take place in an environment of peace and tranquillity. We should follow the tradition of the Holy Prophet (PBUH). The Prophet (PBUH) granted all the demands of the opponents, fair or unfair, to achieve peace for his people.

Q3. Bring about the impact of climate on human life?

Answer: the impact of climate on human life

Climate:

Climate is the long-term pattern of the weather of a certain region over the period of 11 to 40 years generally. It is measured by weather conditions i.e., temperature, humidity, rainfall, winds etc. The difference between Climate and Weather is a measure of time. The weather describes the conditions of the atmosphere over a short period e.g., from day to day or week-to-week whereas the climate of a region is the average weather pattern in a specific place over a period of years.

Seasons

The four well-marked seasons in Pakistan are:

1. Cold season (December to March)
2. Hot season (April to June)
3. Monsoon season (July to September)
4. Post-monsoon season (October and November)

Impact of climate on human life:

The climate in different parts of the world is not the same. Pakistan also faces the variations in its climate such as:

Rainfall and Snowfall:

The region of northern and north-western highlands receives abundant rainfall and snowfall. Therefore, people build houses with sloping roofs to make them safe.

Amount of Rainfall in Different Areas:

Although the country is in the monsoon region, it is arid, except for the southern slopes for the Himalayas and the sub-Mutinous tract, which have a rainfall from 76 to 127 cm.

Balochistan is the driest part of the country with an average rainfall of 21 cm.

In Gilgit Baltistan it is hardly 16 cm.

In western mountains the rainfall average ranges from 27 to 76 cm.

Differences in Temperature

The cold season sets in by the middle of December. This period is characterized by fine weather, bracing air-low humidity and large diurnal range of temperature.

Average minimum and maximum temperatures are 4 C and 18 C, though on occasions the mercury falls well below freezing point. This winter sun is glorious.

The hot season is usually dry. Relative humidity in May and June varies from 50 per cent in the morning to 25 per cent or less in the afternoon. The temperature soars to 40 C and beyond. The highest recorded temperature at Jacobabad in June is 53 C.

In October, the maximum temperature is of the order of 34°C to 37°C all over Pakistan, while the nights are fairly cool with the minimum temperature around 16°C. In November, both the maximum and minimum temperatures fall by about 6°C and the weather becomes pleasant.

Sea Breezes:

The sea breezes in Karachi, Hyderabad and other Sindh areas blows throughout the year, which reduces the effects of high temperature.

Local Winds:

Local winds in deserts are usually very hot during the daytime, which is called 'loo' in Pakistan.

Variations in Summer and Winter's Weather:

In summer, the plains are extremely hot whereas the hilly areas have pleasant weather. Likewise, in winters, snowfalls make the hilly areas extremely cold whereas the plains are less cold.

Tourist's Attraction:

The areas of Murree, Ayubia, Nathiagali, Naran, and Kaghan attract the tourists due to their pleasant summers and scenic beauty.

Q4. What is the importance of the Central Asian States concerning their relationship with Pakistan?Answer: [The importance of the Central Asian States

The most important of the central Asian states are Afghanistan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan. Whereas Tajikistan is a poor, conflict-ridden and Persian-speaking country under Russian tutelage, Turkmenistan is a resource-rich, Turkic and primarily nomadic country that has deposited a document of permanent neutrality with the United Nations. Uzbekistan is feared by most of its neighbours and has come to play the role of regional power in Central Asia.

Two Main Concerns of the Central Asian Countries

To Central Asia, two main concerns arise out of Afghanistan, concerns that are intimately linked with these states' relations with Pakistan. The first concerns security; the second in economic.

Pakistan's relations with Central Asian Countries

Pakistan enjoys close and cordial relations with the Central Asian Republics, which are rested in shared history, culture and traditions. Since their independence in 1922, Pakistan's relations with these states could not flourish as desired due to divergent views on Afghanistan and Pakistan's relations with the Taliban regime. Therefore, despite many high-level visits and agreements signed, we were not able to lay down a solid foundation to intensify our economic and political relationship. However, affairs are on the mend.

Pakistan Helps Central Asian Countries

The central Asian countries are undeveloped in the trade because they have less trading facilities. On the other hand, God had bestowed Pakistan with the gift of warm water seaports. Pakistan's maintains two fine seaports i.e. Karachi and Port Qasim. In the same manner indeed in the days of the defunct Soviet Empire. Goods consigned for these states are first unloaded from ships at Pakistan's seaports and reloaded on road transport to reach their destination in Afghanistan, Russia and other Central Asian states. With a purpose to expenditure and expand transit facilities, an enormous network of motorways was planned during the last decade of the twentieth century.

Conclusion

Re-establishing trust for Pakistan in Central Asia may take time, but its northern neighbours cannot ignore Pakistan's geopolitical and geo-economic position. Economic and trade ties are set to increase rapidly, and funds channelled to the rebuilding of roads links and pipelines could speed up this process. If Islamabad, this time, keeps in mind the sensitivities of the Central Asian States, its role may gradually be restored to that of influential regional power.

Q5. What is the importance of Pakistan from a geographical and strategic point of view?

Answer: Importance of Pakistan from a geographical and strategic point of view

Geographical Location

Pakistan is situated in the continent of Asia between 23.300 and 26.450 latitude (North) and 610 and 75.450 longitude (East). India is situated on Pakistan's Eastern border; China lies to the north-east while Afghanistan is situated in the north-west. In the north, only a narrow belt of 15 miles in Afghanistan, called "Wakhan", separates Pakistan from Russia. To the West lies Iran and in the South is the Arabian Sea.

Area and Population

The total area of the population is 796,096 sq. km and its population is about 130 million according to 1998 census. Pakistan comprises of four provinces, viz, Sindh, Balochistan, Punjab and the NWFP Islamabad is the capital of Pakistan.

Karachi as an Important Port

The industrial progress of the Western countries depends upon the oil of the Gulf States. This oil is carried through the Arabian Sea and the Indian Ocean. Karachi is an important port of the Arabian Sea. The Foreign policy of Pakistan can, therefore, affect the movement of oil.

Control Over Warm Water

The seas of Russia are mostly snow-capped and are not fit for navigation for the larger part of the year. To take an active part in international trade, Russia dreams to have control over the warm water of the Indian Sea. But Pakistan is a hurdle in its way and thus enjoys an important position in the scene of international trade.

Central Position in the Muslim World

By its location, Pakistan occupies a central position in the Muslim countries of the world. Pakistan is located during the extensive chain of the Muslim nations spreading from Morocco in the west to Indonesia in the Far East. Appreciating this esteemed position, the Vice President of Libya Adus-Salam Jalud during his visit to Pakistan in 1978, called Pakistan "the heart of the Muslim world."

Importance in World Politics

Pakistan came into being only two years after the termination of the Second World War. In the post-war period, the USA and the USSR had emerged as superpowers. The two countries struggled of the smaller countries of the world and enhance their respective spheres of influence. During this period, generally referred to as "Cold War Era", Pakistan decided to side with the American block. Pakistan also joined SEATO and CENTO, the anti-Russia military alliances formed under the American umbrella. Notwithstanding the merits and demerits of this policy, we must admit that Pakistan could rise to this position of superb importance in world politics only due to her strategic location.

The leadership of the Third World

Due to her unconditional loyalty with the American block Pakistan could not attain a respectable position amongst the non-aligned and the third world countries. In the later period when Pakistan adopted a policy of the year 1979, the then president of Pakistan was designated to represent the Muslim World at Havana Conference of non-aligned countries. In 1980 he was again given the honour of addressing the UN General Assembly at the spokesman of the entire Muslim World.

Anti-Expansionist Stance

Despite her meagre resources, Pakistan took a firm stand against the expansionist designs of the Soviet Union and offered sustained resistance to the Russian intrusion in Afghanistan. The entire free world now appreciates that it was Pakistan's heroic fighting spirit that defeated the Russian designs in Afghanistan and lead to the ultimate dismemberment of the superpower.

Centre of Trade and Transit Routes

Pakistan is placed in a highly strategic position on the world map. It is located in the centre of the road and rail links between the countries of the Far East and Iran, Turkey and Europe.

Q4. What happens If the balance between the duties and rights is not maintained? Discuss

answer:

Human rights are much more than well-meaning aspirations set to legal language. It is important for society to live human rights through its practices, behavior, and attitudes. The realization of human rights involves promoting human dignity and dignity is fostered fundamentally by the way one is treated by others. Rights and duties are organic to each other and cannot be separated. Failure to understand the inextricable link between rights and duties can bring the disaster to a society. This relationship has three different aspects:

i. Social Character:

Rights and duties are social in character and these are reciprocal. For example, A's right to life imposes upon him a duty that he should protect other's lives. If A does not fulfill his duty and takes somebody's life; his own right to life is forfeited and he is sentenced to death. A social scientist has rightly remarked:

"It is futile to consider whether rights are prior to duties or vice versa. They are the counterparts of each other. If everyone insisted on his rights but neglected his duties towards others there would soon be no rights left for anyone."

ii. Reciprocity and Restraint demands of Rights:

Rights not only imply reciprocity, but they also demand restraint because "they are not meant to satisfy individual caprice and desire alone, they are intended to serve some useful purpose. An individual should exercise his rights in such a way as to secure the greatest good not merely for himself but to the whole community." For instance, a person's right to freedom of expression does not allow him to preach violence or sectarian hatred.

iii. Proper Implementation of Rights and Duties:

Rights and duties are not only reciprocal they also have a third party to observe and guarantee their proper implementation, which is the state. Thus, the State punishes those who do not perform their duties and it safeguards the rights of the citizens.

Citizen's Role in implementing Rights and Duties:

Thus, it seems essential to broaden the conceptual framework for addressing human rights and responsibilities relations among all human beings as members of one community. In this context, everyone has an essential role to play in implementing fundamental human rights. When individuals assume responsibility for ensuring each other's human rights, the foundation for unity will be firmly established.

Prophet's S.A.W Saying:

Prophet S.A.W said that one should treat his brother in a way; he would like to be treated by them. This statement is more valuable than thousands of books written on the relationship about rights and duties. It can serve as a complete and perfect code of human relationship and no philosophy or social sciences can stand equal to it.

Q5. Give an account of the obstacles in the way of Islamization and show, in your opinion, these can be removed?

Answer

Pakistan is an Islamic state but the dream of Islamization in Pakistan is still to be realized. We have 55 years of independence but mentally we still are slaves. The reason behind this mental and psychological slavery is that we have not implemented the system of Islamization in our country. The following are the obstacles in the way of Islamization in Pakistan:

- The shortcoming in the Strategy of Islamization
- The autocracy of the religious extremists
- Lack of Democratic Thinking
- The conception of the Religion
- Lack of People who are involved with the Islamization of the Country
- Ignorance of the People
- Foreign Lobby
- The Bad Image of the Muslims
- Economic Dependence

Shortcomings in the Strategy of Islamization

No proper steps have been taken in regarding the task of Islamization in the country. Always wrong strategies have been used for this purpose.

The autocracy of the Religious Extremists

The extremists of the religious autocrats are the greatest obstacle in the way of Islamization in the country. These autocrats believe in enforcing religion upon the people. They do not know that love and not pressure is the key to the heart. People may surrender to pressure and coercion but they cannot be true Muslims until they feel the message of truth penetrating in their hearts.

Lack of Democratic Thinking

The godfathers of religion lack democratic attitude. They cannot tolerate the negation of their standpoint. This lack of democratic thinking gives a rise to self-righteousness and eats away the process of Islamization in the country.

The ambiguous conception of the religion

Islam is a complete code of life. But the autocratic people have enclosed it in just several ceremonies and rites. The completion of these ceremonies and rites is necessary no doubt. But Islam is not only a set of ceremonies. Rather its span spreads over the whole life of a man.

Lack of the people who are involved with the Islamization of the country

Our history bears testimony to the fact that the authorities, the government and even the religious godfathers treated the term 'Islamization of Pakistan' as a mere cliché. They used this term to win either political or personal gains. This lack of sincerity towards the process of Islamization did many wrecks to the mission.

Ignorance of the people

The masses of Pakistan are ignorant. They do not know what is Islam. They are just hereditarily Muslims. Islam is just their legacy, which their parents have left to them. Since the people of the country are more than ignorant, the process of Islamization just remains paperwork, a lip service.

Foreign Lobby

The biggest obstacle in the implementation of Islamization in Pakistan is the external lobby. The Titan countries are afraid of the might of Islam. They fear that Islamization would dwindle their monopoly. So they engage themselves in breaking rumours against Islam so that the dream of Islamization cannot be realized.

The Bad Image of the Muslims

The Muslims themselves had made their image tattered in the eyes of the foreign countries. It is a harsh reality that the majority of the international terrorists in the present era are comprised of Muslims.

Economic Dependence

Pakistan is dependent on the foreign. This economic dependence is the major obstacle in the way of Islamization of Pakistan.

Measures to remove the obstacles in the ways of Islamization:

Some of the measures to remove the obstacles in the way of Islamization are:

1. Islamic state emerges from an Islamic society. Only a person with real Islamic character and committed to total subservience to Allah's commandments can form a society truly Islamic in character.
2. Character building is a democratic process and requires an enormous amount of sustained effort.
3. The major components of Islamization struggle are education, purification of the soul and calling people to the right path by invoking their reason and sense of justice, which could be done through peaceful persuasion and opinion forming.
4. In a democratic society, the law is considered the reflection of the "general will" of the society and not vice versa.
5. Laws do not create societies, societies create laws. Therefore, an Islamic state cannot be created merely by proclaiming or implementing certain constitutional instruments.
6. The Prophet S.A.W adopted the strategy of converting the people through education and da'wa (opinion forming and persuasion through peaceful means) and instead of creating an Islamic society, the establishment of an Islamic state should be preceded.

Conclusion:

To conclude, it is clear that our politicians, bureaucrats, traders, and all the classes of the society are addicted to corruption, which is the production of materialistic approaches and ignoring the Islamic and spiritual values. It must always be kept in mind that the real obstacles in the way of Islamization are the low character of the people. For achieving the goals of Islamization, we should take up the task of building a nation spiritually sound and morally strong. This is an enormous task which can only be accomplished through education and da'wa and not merely through coercion or authoritative measures.

8) Define rights and duties? Explain their relationship to each other.

Answer:

Rights:

The word "Right" has various meanings according to its context. When it is used as a concept of social sciences, it implies "The power to do or enjoy something which is approved or recognized by other members of the society." Laski has defined 'Rights' as;

"Those conditions of social life without which no man can seek, in general, to be his best self."

Duties:

Duties:

"Duties" is the term used very commonly in social sciences. It implies an individual's responsibilities towards other members of society. "Duty" has been defined as:

"Something that one does either because it is part of one's job or because it is morally or legally right that one should do it."

It can be defined as that 'a rightful claim of 'B' on 'A' is A's duty.

Characteristics of Rights and Duties:

The characteristics of rights and duties are:

1. Rights and duties are the basic conditions of civilized life.
2. Rights and responsibilities are uniform in nature. This implies that all citizens have equal rights.
3. Rights are inviolable; no citizen can be deprived of his or her fundamental rights unless it is imperative for the fulfilment of a constitutional or legal requirement.
4. Rights are the values on which society determines its norms of right and wrong, just and unjust.
5. Rights and duties are organic to each other; one person's right is another person's duty.

The Relationship between Rights and Responsibilities:

The two phrases "rights" and "duties" coexist with each other. In other words, the rights and duties are two sides of the same coin, to regulate the values and behavioural patterns of an individual. On one side, rights are important in developing human personality and behaviour. The duties, on the other hand, direct the individual's importance of their contribution to the promotion of social good. Thus, Rights and duties are organic to each other and cannot be separated. Failure to understand the inextricable link between rights and duties can bring the disaster to a society. This relationship has three different aspects:

1. social Character:

Rights and duties are social in character and these are reciprocal. For example, A's right to life imposes upon him a duty that he should protect other's lives. If A does not fulfil his duty and takes somebody's life; his own right to life is forfeited and he is sentenced to death. A social scientist has rightly remarked:

"It is futile to consider whether rights are prior to duties or vice versa. They are the counterparts of each other. If everyone insisted on his rights but neglected his duties towards others there would soon be no rights left for anyone."

2. Reciprocity and Restraint demands of Rights:

Rights not only imply reciprocity, but they also demand restraint because "they are not meant to satisfy individual caprice and desire alone, they are intended to serve some useful purpose. An individual should exercise his rights in such a way as to secure the greatest good not merely for himself but to the whole community.” For instance, a person’s right to freedom of expression does not allow him to preach violence or sectarian hatred.

3. Proper Implementation of Rights and Duties:

Rights and duties are not only reciprocal they also have a third party to observe and guarantee their proper implementation, which is the state. Therefore, the State punishes those who do not perform their duties and it safeguards the rights of the citizens.

Prophet’s (S.A.W) Saying:

Prophet S.A.W said that one should treat his brother in a way; he would like to be treated by them. This statement is more valuable than thousands of books written on the relationship about rights and duties. It can serve as a complete and perfect code of human relationship and no philosophy or social sciences can stand equal to it.

Conclusion:

Thus, it can be concluded that everyone has duties and rights towards others and within the community. The moral and legal duties could bring harmony in society and helps to realize the guarantees of human rights fully in promoting life, liberty, and equality.

1) What is the composition of the federal legislature in Pakistan? (Separate narration of Senate and National Assembly composition is not required)

Answer:

The Constitution of 1973 is the first Constitution of Pakistan made by a constituent assembly elected directly by the people based on adult franchise. All the political parties with membership in the Constituent Assembly voted for the Constitution. The administrative structure of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan is based on the 1973 Constitution.

The composition of the Federal Legislature in Pakistan:

Legislative is defined as the law forming body of the state. The Federal legislative of Pakistan under the Constitution of 1973 has been named 'Parliament'. The Parliament of Pakistan, officially termed the Majlis-e-Shoora, is the federal and supreme legislative body of Pakistan. Pakistan's Parliament is the bicameral federal legislature that consists of the two houses i.e. National Assembly or the lower house and Senate or the upper house.

Process of Legislation in the Federal Legislature

Every piece of Legislation that parliament passes undergoes four stages, i.e.

1. Preparation of draft

First of all, a draft of the desired law is prepared by the law experts. This draft is called "Bill." Private members can also prepare or draft bills to be presented before the Parliament.

2. Debate in National Assembly

A draft is generally initiated before the lower house (National Assembly) first. The National Assembly undertakes a debate on the bill, which is carried out in different stages. If the National Assembly passes the bill in original or amended form, it is sent to the upper house (Senate) for approval.

3. Debate in Senate

A bill passed by the National Assembly is again debated in different stages in the Senate. After the debate, the bill may be passed in original or amended form or rejected.

4. Approval of President

A bill passed by the Parliament (National Assembly and Senate) is submitted for the final approval of the President. After the approval of the President, the bill is published as law and makes a part of the statute book. The President has no real authority to reject a bill passed by the Parliament.

All bills except the monetary bills can be initiated in either of the two houses (National Assembly or Senate). If a bill is initiated in the Senate it will be sent to the National Assembly after the approval of the Senate, but as a matter of practice, most of the bills are first initiated in the National Assembly.

2) Describe the composition and functions of the National Assembly of Pakistan under the 1973 Constitution.

Answer:

National Assembly:

The National Assembly of Pakistan is the country's sovereign legislative body. It embodies the will of the people to let themselves be governed under the democratic, multi-party Federal Parliamentary System.

The composition of National Assembly:

The Pakistani National Assembly is the lower house of the bicameral Majlis-e-Shoora or the Parliament.

Total Seats

The National Assembly is a democratically elected body consisting of 342 members, who are referred to as Members of the National Assembly (MNAs), of which 272 are directly elected members.

Reserved Seats

70 reserved seats for women and religious minorities.

Demarcation of constituencies

The country has been divided into constituencies demarcated based on the nearly equal number of voters in each constituency.

Election Process

Each constituency returns one member to the National Assembly, which is elected by the Universal Adult Franchise.

Election of Women

The members of the Provincial Assemblies in all the four provinces elect woman members to fill the seats reserved for women members allocated for each province.

Eligibility for Membership

Any citizen of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan who has attained to the age of 25 is eligible for the membership of the National Assembly.

Tenure of national Assembly

The tenure of national assembly is five years. After completing tenure whole assembly dissolved.

Presiding Officer of The National Assembly

The presiding officer of the National Assembly is called "Speaker" while "Deputy Speaker" is also elected to perform duties in the absence of the Speaker.

The Prime Minister

The Prime Minister is the most powerful and dignified office of the Republic. He is the head of the administrative machinery and the Chief Executive as well as the leader of the majority party in the National Assembly. The President cannot overrule or reject the advice tendered by the Prime Minister. The President, however, enjoys certain discretionary powers.

Functions of National Assembly:

Under the Constitution of 1973, The National Assembly is elected for five years, but the President can dissolve the National Assembly on Prime Minister's advice during its term. In this case, midterm elections are held within 90 days of the dissolution of the Assembly. The functions of National Assembly are:

1. The National Assembly has wide-ranging powers of legislation.
2. It enjoys full control of financial matters.
3. No tax in the country can be levied without the approval of the National Assembly.
4. The National Assembly makes laws for the federation and elects the Prime Minister. In this way, the National Assembly exercises full control over the administration in the country.
- 5.

3) Describe the composition and functions of the Senate under the 1973 Constitution of Pakistan.

Answer:

The composition of the Senate:

Senate of Pakistan is the Upper House of the Parliament., first introduced in the Constitution of 1973. This house represents the provinces and all the four provinces, large and small, have equal representation in the Senate. The composition of the Senate takes place as:

Total Seats

1. In Pakistan, the Senate consists of 100 members. The composition of the Senate has further changed with the incorporation of the Seventeenth Amendment in the Constitution. The Senate now has a strength of 100 members. Of these, 14 are elected from each provincial assembly; four are elected from the FATA, 4 from the Federal Capital, 4 women elected by each provincial assembly and 4 technocrats including Ulama, elected by each provincial assembly.

As FATA has been merged with KPK so after 2024 there would be no separate allocation of seats for FATA so the total seats will become 96.

Provinces / Territories	General	Technocrats / Ulama	Women	Non-Muslims	Total
Sindh	14	4	4	1	23
Punjab	14	4	4	1	23
Balochistan	14	4	4	1	23
Khyber Pakhtunkhwa	14	4	4	1	23
Federal Capital	2	1	1	-	4
FATA	4	-	-	-	4
TOTAL	62	17	17	4	100

Eligibility for Membership

Any registered voter, at least 30 years of age, is eligible to contest for a seat of the Senate, allocated for his province of domicile.

Presiding Officer of The Senate

The Senate session is presided over by a chairman, who is assisted by a Vice-Chairman. Both these officials are elected by the Senators, which are formed among themselves.

Tenure of national The Senate

The Senate is a permanent institution, which cannot be dissolved en block (as a whole). Each Senator is elected for six years and half of the total number of Senators retires every three years.

The Functions of the Senate:

The functions of the Senate are:

1. No law in the Republic can be promulgated unless it has been passed by the Senate.
2. The Senate's powers of legislation are at par with the National Assembly accepting monetary matters regarding which the National Assembly has a dominant role.
The chairman of the Senate officiates as President of Pakistan in his absence.
3. The framers of the Constitution of Pakistan gave the Senate the important role of protecting the interest of federating units.
4. The Senate promotes a feeling of equality, peace, and harmony, which is essential for the growth and prosperity of a nation. Thus, the Senate over the years has emerged as an essential organ and a stabilizing factor of the federation.

5.

4) What is the composition of the federal administration under the 1973 Constitution; also enlist its important functions.

Answer: The Federal Administration

The administrative structure of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan is based on the 1973 Constitution.

There are five governments working in Pakistan; one federal and four provincial governments.

All federal systems are based on the principle of division of powers among the federating units (Provinces) and the federal government (the central government).

Organs of Government

Governments are composed of three organs. The composition of these three organs under the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan is based on:

- i. Legislative,
- ii. Executive
- iii. The Federal Judiciary.

1. The Legislative:

Legislative is defined as the law forming body of the state. The Federal legislative of Pakistan under the Constitution of 1973 has been named 'Parliament'. The Parliament of Pakistan, officially termed the Majlis-e-Shoora, is the federal and supreme legislative body of Pakistan.

2. Bi-Cameral Legislature

Pakistan's Parliament is the bicameral federal legislature that consists of the two houses i.e. National Assembly or the lower house and Senate or the upper house.

Process of Legislation in the Federal Legislature

Every piece of Legislation that parliament passes undergoes four stages, i.e.

1. Preparation of draft

3. Debate in Senate

A bill passed by the National Assembly is again debated in different stages in the Senate. After the debate, the bill may be passed in original or amended form or rejected.

4. Approval of President

A bill passed by the Parliament (National Assembly and Senate) is submitted for the final approval of the President. After the approval of the President, the bill is published as law and makes a part of the statute book. The President has no real authority to reject a bill passed by the Parliament.

All bills except the monetary bills can be initiated in either of the two houses (National Assembly or Senate). If a bill is initiated in the Senate it will be sent to the National Assembly after the approval of the Senate, but as a matter of practice, most of the bills are first initiated in the National Assembly.

3. The Executive:

The Parliamentary system

The Democratic systems are classified into two major government forms based on the division of powers between the organs of government; parliamentary and presidential. The Parliamentary system has been adopted in a number of countries including Pakistan, India, and the UK. The United States of America is the most outstanding example of a country run under the presidential system.

In the Parliamentary system, the legislature dominates the executive. However, in Pakistan, the executive is formed by the legislature.

Organs of the Executive

The two important organs of the Executive are:

- i. The Prime Minister
- ii. President.

i. The Prime Minister:

The National Assembly (Legislative) elects the Prime Minister. The Prime Minister is legally bound to select three-fourths of the members of his cabinet from the National Assembly members. Every minister acts as the executive head of one or more of the government departments. The Prime Minister is the chief executive. The office of the President is less powerful in practice because the Prime Minister countersign all the orders passed by the President. The National Assembly can force the Prime Minister and his Cabinet to resign office by passing a no-confidence motion against the government.

ii. The President:

The President enjoys the protocol of being the highest office bearer of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan. Constitutionally, his discretion is limited by the binding advice of the Prime Minister. The President is elected by the two houses of Parliament and the four Provincial Assemblies. The Parliament can remove the President if he is suffering from mental or physical disability. A Muslim, who qualifies for the membership of the National Assembly and has attained to the age of 45 is eligible to contest election for the office of the President.

The responsibilities of President are:

1. The President can impose emergency in any province and can dissolve the Provincial Assembly.
2. He is authorized to appoint judges of the Supreme Court and judges of all the four High Courts.
3. In addition, the President also appoints the Attorney General, four provincial Governors, members of the Council for Islamic Ideology and the three Army Chiefs.
4. He also appoints a number of other important functions of the Government.
5. The President can promulgate ordinances on the advice of the Prime Minister by having the force of law if the National Assembly is not in session.
6. An ordinance issued by the President has the force of law for a period of four months. However, within or after the lapse of four months the Parliament may ~~abrogate an ordinance or pass it as a piece of law.~~ After approval by the Parliament, an ordinance has the same force as a law passed by the Parliament through the normal procedure.
7. The President has the authority to hold a referendum on an issue of national importance.

3. The Federal Judiciary:

Under the Constitution of 1973, a Supreme Court had been established at the federal level. All persons and institutions operating within the state of Pakistan fall within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court consists of one Chief Justice and a number of judges. The President appoints the Chief Justice, and the President with the consultation of Chief Justice appoints the rest of the judges. The Judges of the Supreme Court have full security of the service. Only the Supreme Judicial Council can make recommendations about the removal of a judge based on serious disability. The President passes the order of the removal, but he cannot remove a judge on his own without the recommendation of the Supreme Judicial Council.

5) How provincial governments are formed and what functions do they perform in the Islamic Republic of Pakistan.

Answer:

The government of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan is comprised of one federal and four provincial governments, all the provincial governments have identical government structures and institutions, but due to the variation of the size of the provinces, the numerical strength of the Assemblies and the number of judges in the provincial High Courts differ from each other.

Organs of Provincial Government

Governments are composed of three organs. The composition of these three organs under the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan is based on:

- i. Legislative,
- ii. Executive
- iii. The Federal Judiciary.

The Legislature:

The Provincial Assembly in each province performs almost the same functions as the National Assembly does at the federal level.

Responsibilities of The Provincial Assemblies

The Provincial Assemblies can legislate on all matters mentioned in the Concurrent List.

Demarcation of constituencies

Every Province has been divided into constituencies equal in number to the seats allocated to the Provincial Assembly under the Constitution. From each constituency, voters return one member to their respective Provincial Assembly.

Election Process

Elections are held on the principle of universal adult franchise.

The head of the provincial executive

The head of the provincial executive is called Chief Minister. The absolute majority of the members of the Provincial Assembly elect the Chief Minister. The Chief Minister appoints members of the provincial cabinet to run the administration. Each minister heads one or more administrative departments. The Chief Minister along with his cabinet is accountable to the Assembly.

Vote of No Confidence

The Provincial Assembly can pass a vote of no confidence to remove the Chief Minister and his cabinet from office.

Executive:

Organs of the Executive

The two important organs of the Executive are:

- i. The Chief Minister
- ii. Governor

The Chief Minister

The Chief Minister is the leader of the Provincial Assembly. The Chief Minister has almost the same position in the province as the Prime Minister has in the federal government. The Chief Minister runs his government with the help of his cabinet.

Governor

The Constitutional head of each province is called Governor. In each province, the governor enjoys the same position as the President enjoys in the centre. The President appoints all the four provincial governors. The governors represent the federal government at the provincial level. The President can remove any Governor from his office without assigning the reason.

Responsibilities of Governor

- i. The piece of legislation passed by the Provincial Assemblies takes the force of law only if the Governor of the province has countersigned it. However, the governor cannot reject a piece of legislation passed by the Provincial Assembly.
- ii. The Governor can promulgate ordinances having the force of law in the province. This power is identical to the President's power of promulgating ordinances at the centre. Ordinances are effective for a specified period. The respective Provincial Assembly can reject the ordinance or adopt it as a permanent piece of legislation.

Judiciary: (the High Courts)

Four high Courts have been established under the Constitution in all four provinces. The High Court functions under the supervision of the Supreme Court. Each High Court consists of one Chief Justice and a number of judges. The High Court has original jurisdiction as well as appellate jurisdiction. High Courts also hear cases regarding contempt of court and tender expert legal advice to their respective Governors and Provincial Assemblies. The Supreme Court has the power to hear appeals against the decisions passed by the High Courts.

6) Give an account of the targets and expectations proclaimed by the authors of the Devolution Plan.

Answer:

General Pervez Musharraf assumed power on Oct 12, 1999, as Chief Executive and in 2000 he introduced a new system of local governments, which he named as "Devolution of Power and Responsibility Plan." Devolution is the transfer of resources and power to lower-level authorities, which are largely or wholly independent of higher levels of government. The main philosophy underlying this system was to dissolve powers and responsibilities regarding governmental affairs to the "grass-root-level." The devolution plan gave a four-tier system of local government i.e. Union Council, City District, Tehsil District, District Council.

Expectations and Targets:

The major stipulated targets and expectations of the plan were:

- Build the confidence of the nation.
- Strengthen the federation and remove disparities existing among different provinces.
- Build the confidence of the investors.
- Rule of law and ensure speedy justice.
- Eliminate political manoeuvring from the institutions of the state.
- To devolve governmental authority at the grass-root level.
- To ensure speedy and transparent accountability.

10) What are the obstacles interposed in the way of good governance and how can these be overcome?

Answer:

The concept of "Good Governance" can be defined as the manner in which power is exercised in the management of a country's economic and social resources for development. It relates to the quality of the relationship between government and the citizens whom it exists to serve and protect. However, if the relationship between citizens and the government could not be maintained, it resulted in bad governance, which is regarded as one of the root causes of all evils within our societies. It is coordinated by aggression i.e. violence, deception, cheating against the wills of citizens who are not using deceitful methods to benefit their interests etc. It is also characterized by the absence of strong opposition and pressure groups.

Obstacles and in the way of Good Governance:

The major obstacles interposed in the way of establishing good governance are:

1. Bad Citizenship:

Good governance is directly related to good citizenship. It is generally regarded that bad citizens do not take their civic duty. This means that whenever the government formulates policies, citizens do not participate in matters of state. They do not vote seriously and do not respect the basic rights and beliefs of other citizens.

2. Illiteracy and ignorance:

There is no short cut remedy to the vices of a bad political culture. The problem of good governance is very complex and complicated. It is the root of a multitude of problems. Ignorance is the mother of all evils. It cannot be gotten rid of unless education is made universal. A poor society cannot afford to educate its citizens due to the lack of resources.

3. Poverty:

The most troublesome facet of the poverty condition is due to the growing economic disparities in the country. Poverty in itself is such a great curse, which gives birth to a multitude of vices, i.e. greed, indolence, corruption, and social integration. Poor people fall easy prey to petty temptations offered to them by the self-serving politicians.

4. The culture based on War and Terrorism:

War has become an extremely expensive enterprise after the development of technology. Even the richest nations of the world cannot venture to remain in a state of war for long. German dictator Adolph Hitler is known to be the most callous and ruthless of the world's dictators. He idealized war as the noblest of human pursuits, he said that one who does not want to wage war must perish, and the nobility of a person according to him, could be judged only by the intensity of his love for war. It was due to this philosophy that the fire lit by Hitler's militancy set an extensive part of World War II. Vanquished and spent out, because of his insane proclamations, Hitler had to admit at last; "in modern warfare, there are no conquerors, there are only the perished and the survivors."

5. Oppressive Political System:

The oppressive political system is a big problem in the way of good governance. The political leaders have no interest in the welfare of the population. In most of the developing countries, rich industrialists join politics to safeguard their industries. The feudalists involved in politics for the sake of status and power.

6. Social System based on Corruption and dishonest practices:

Corruption and dishonest practices in a social system are one of the major issues in the way of good governance because discipline is almost negligent and regulations are not evenly imposed in the society.

Removal of hurdles in the way of good governance:

Good governance has a significant impact on the economic development of a country. Therefore, some of the solutions for removing the obstacles in the way of good governance are:

1. Participation of Citizens:

The participation of citizens in the matter of policies, elections, and other democratic processes can help the state in the selection of a good leader who will work for the betterment of the people.

2. Promotion of Education:

The government should work for the promotion of education and persuasion to remove the hurdle of illiteracy and ignorance.

3. Role of Civil Society:

Citizens face potential corruption, practically at every level and every sector of life. Government alone cannot succeed in combating corruption without the active participation of civil society and citizen action groups. Civil society should serve its role as observer, critic, analyst, campaigner, or protestor.

4. Awareness of the effects of bad governance:

The social organizations can make coordinated efforts to spread the message that corrupt governance at every level affects the economic development, impairs equitable distribution of wealth, destroys social justice, and degrades the moral of the society.

5. Role of Institutions:

For good governance, existing institutions need to be renovated, overhauled, and strengthened by laws, guidance, and regulations. New regulatory institutions should be established to address gaps in monitoring governance.

6. Enforcement of Law:

Good government should enforce the rule of law, which requires a fair legal framework that is enforced impartially. This indicates that no one is above the law; everyone has to abide by the law.

Conclusion:

The system of governance affects the performance of the state in executing its core functions and the performance of countries in meeting the major economic and social goals. Law and order, economy, political stability, and accountability are the key concepts of good governance. Therefore, it is needed for good governance to review and revise the policies to earn effective and efficient governance practices.

11) What is the composition of the Union Council and functions it is required to perform under the new system of District Government?

Answer:

Union Council:

Union Council is one of the important electoral structures of the devolution plan, which was introduced by Pervez Musharraf. At the lower tier, unions are organized in rural as well as urban areas across the whole district.

Composition under new District Government:

Union council in Pakistan is an elected local government body consisting of 21 councilors and headed by a Nazim and a Naib Nazim. Union Council will be elected directly, for the tenure of four years, on one-man one vote basis. Union Councils shall be so demarcated as to have approximately equal population. Each Union Council shall have twenty-one members elected based on the following seat allocation break up:

Category	No. of Seats
1. Nazim	1
2. Naib Nazim	1
3. Muslim (Male)	8
4. Muslim (Female)	4
5. Workers/ Peasants (Male)	4
6. Worker/ Peasants (Female)	2
7. Minorities	1
Total	21

If the population of the minority community in a Union Council exceeds 10 % of the total population, the provincial government shall affect a revised seat allocation.

Functions Of Union Council:

The Union Council shall perform the following functions:

1. To undertake development projects at the local level, by working in collaboration with village councils in rural areas, and the Citizens community Board in both urban and rural areas.
To levy taxes in order to raise funds.
2. To prepare annual development plans to be carried out in its jurisdiction.
3. To act as a conciliatory body to resolve civil, criminal and family disputes.
4. To facilitate the formation of co-operatives for improving economic returns and a reduction of interstitial poverty
5. To adopt appropriate measures and provide support to the City District Government for the achievement of socio-economic development and improvement of services

Conclusion:

The Union Council plays a central role in the local government system. In order to address people's problems and demands effectively, Nazim must establish a participatory management system for needs identification, planning, and monitoring procedures. Therefore, the People of an area should be encouraged to interact with the union council and should be informed about decisions regarding the union.

12) What is the composition of Tehsil administration; also give an account of its powers and functions.

Answer:

Tehsil Administration:

Tehsil Administration is one of the tiers of Local Government Plan. It was formed with respect to the constant growth in the population's needs for establishing cities or towns at grass root level in an environment that has all the basic and important requisites to serve society. Many of the functions previously performed by the local offices of provincial government departments now fall within the domain of the new system of tehsil/town municipal administrations.

The composition of Tehsil administration

The Tehsil government includes:

- The Tehsil Nazim,
- Tehsil Naib Nazim,
- Tehsil Assembly

The Tehsil Administration.

- In Tehsil administration a Tehsil Municipal officer (TMO) shall act as coordinator for the Tehsil administration.
- Four Tehsil Officers (TOs) shall report and assist the TMO on subjects of finance, budget, municipal standards, land use, control, and rural-urban planning.

Functions:

The Tehsil Nazim should be the head of Tehsil Municipal Administration and shall perform such functions and exercise such powers, which have been assigned to him under the Ordinance and rules. The Tehsil Municipal Administration is entrusted with the functions of administration, finances, and management of the offices of Local Government and Rural Development, and numerous other subjects at the regional, Divisional, District, Tehsil, and lower levels. Tehsil Council shall perform the following functions, i.e.:

1. The responsibility of coordination of all policy matters
2. Provision of municipal services within the Tehsil area.
3. Coordination between and the monitoring of the district government officials.
4. Development through land control and master planning in all towns and villages of the Tehsil.
5. Reversing the process of serialization of the urban areas and urbanization of the rural areas.
6. If a Tehsil area becomes urbanized it shall be raised to the status of a 'City District'. The 'City District' shall be divided into a number of towns based on population.

Conclusion:

The Tehsil Municipal Administration is exclusively responsible for zonal planning, municipal services, and maintenance of the Tehsil. The Local government should be considered new improved techniques to make the services more applicable with effectiveness guaranteed.

13) What do you know about the City District Police and District Judicial system?

Answer:

City District:

The City District Government intends to provide empowerment to politics by improving governance and decentralization of Administrative Authority. Therefore, different departments have been established for working under one platform. If a Tehsil area becomes unable to perform its functions smoothly due to its urbanization, it shall be raised to the status of a City district. The City district shall be divided into a number of towns. The division will be made on the population basis. The newly formed towns of the City District shall have the powers and authority to perform municipal functions and provide civic facilities to the residents of the area.

City District Police:

According to the new concept of devolution plan, law and order is the responsibility of the provincial government. One important feature of the new legal framework for police is the ability to establish an institutional link between the District Police and District Government. Under the Police Order, the DPO is responsible to Zila Nazim for his performance, although administration of police remains with the DPO.

In order to make the police answerable to the public, a new system of accountability has been introduced at district and city district levels. From the citizens' point of view, the most important feature of the new legal framework is its ability to institutionalize citizen participation and oversight in the police functions. A number of new institutions have been envisaged, which bring the public closer to the police to take maximum benefits from its services.

District Judicial System:

District courts exist in every district of each province and have civil and criminal jurisdiction. The Devolution Plan 2000 speaks about new judicial principles i.e.

1. Quick and effective dispensation of justice
2. Provision of justice at the doorstep
3. Exemption of litigation
4. Decentralization of judiciary
5. Horizontal expansion of judiciary by establishing new small cause courts at the Tehsil level.
6. Establishment of special courts for women

14) Write an essay on the "Islamic Concept of Good Governance".

Answer:

Islamic Concept of Good Governance:

Islamic pattern of state demands that the relationship between the individual and the state be organized in a pattern that should neither cause stress and oppression for the individual nor allow the government to exert its authority autocratically. Islam wants to create a political culture based on a complete balance between the objectives of the state and aspirations of the citizens. These Islamic principles can be upheld by observing certain principles.

Principles of Islamic State:

The Islamic conduct of the state is based on the following guiding principles:

1. Selection of the Head of the State:

People should be allowed to exercise their free will in the selection of the head of the state. He should be a person distinguished due to his outstanding merits of knowledge and God-fearing (Taqwa). Quran says:

"... verily most honoured of you in the sight of Allah is (he who is) the most righteous of you..."

2. Equality before Law:

All the institutions of the state should be run strictly according to law. All citizens should be equal before the law.

3. Equality:

No discrimination among citizens should be made on the basis of colour, race, place of domicile, language, creed or gender.

4. Protection of citizen's Rights:

The basic social, political, and religious rights of the citizens should be protected. All the citizens should enjoy equal freedom.

5. Prohibition of Usury:

Usury (Riba) should be strictly prohibited and accumulation of wealth discouraged.

6. Organization of Islamic practices:

It should be the duty of the state to collect Usher, Zakat, Khums, and Sadqaat from the wealthy and spend it for the uplift of the poor and the destitute.

7. Basic Human Needs:

The state should take the responsibility of providing all the citizens with the basic human needs. These basic needs include food, shelter, dress, old age pension, and health facilities.

8. Justice:

An Islamic state should administer justice without discrimination. Allah has ordered his Prophet SAW and all the Muslims to do justice in every situation. Quran says:

"... and let not the hatred of others make you swerve to wrong and depart from justice, be just; that is next to pity, and fear Allah..."

9. Enforcement of Hudood Ordinance:

An Islamic state should enforce those punishments which have especially been mentioned in the Holy Quran and which are termed as "Hadd" i.e. the moral vices like lying, breaking of the promise and covenant, backbiting and untrue allegation, and miserliness greed and avarice, taking bribe, robbery, falling short the balance and measurements, drinking, gambling, arrogance, and hypocrisy etc.

10. Promotion of Education and persuasion Method:

The state should work for the promotion of virtue by applying the methods of education and persuasion. Widows, orphans, and the destitute should be given help from the Bait-ul-Maal. An Islamic state should try to inculcate in its citizens the qualities of chastity, self-respect, piety, love of humanity, tolerance and forgiveness, fair dealing, humanity, kindness, and consideration of the fellow beings.

11. Free and Compulsory Education:

It is the duty of an Islamic state to provide free and compulsory education for all citizens. The education scheme should include not only basic literacy but also higher Islamic learning, linguistics as well as the physical and social sciences on the highest possible level.

12. Minorities Rights:

It is the duty of an Islamic state to establish peace and punish the criminals. In an Islamic state Muslim and Non-Muslim, citizens have equal social rights. The non-Muslim citizens, rather excel in certain matters e.g., they are exempt from compulsory military services. The non-Muslim citizens should be given complete freedom for the preservation of their culture, language, personal law, places of worship, and religious institutions. No person should be forced to pay a tax for the maintenance and support of the religious institutions or the preaching of religion.

13. Moral and Spiritual Uplift of the Citizens:

An Islamic state is established not merely for the maintenance of peace. It has higher objectives to achieve and it has to work for the moral and spiritual uplift of its citizens. It prepares them for a successful life in their world and deliverance in the Hereafter. The Holy Quran enlists the paramount objectives of an Islamic state in the following words:

“... (they are) those who if we establish them in the land, establish regular prayer, and give regular charity, enjoin the right and forbid wrong; with Allah rests the end (and decision) of (all) affairs.”

Conclusion:

Islam is not only a religion but it is a complete code of life. It is a perfect religion to follow and to implement good governance. In fact, the model of good governance offered by Islam is unmatched in all respects and the policies pursued by Prophet Muhammad SAW and his followers especially the first four caliphs (R.A.) offer great insight for the modern world as well. Thus, Islam encourages the formation of a just society based on the principles of equality, justice, rational thinking, tolerance, and equity, which presented a model of good governance
